FOR TWO YEARS, Chicago's "A Century of Progress" Exposition has attracted millions from all over the United States and from foreign countries. Its great success and usefulness are a tribute to the courage and ability of Chicago's citizens and the intelligent interest of the American public.

The scene that attended the closing of the fair on Wednesday last was, unfortunately, not worthy of the fair's history. Among a crowd of three hundred thousand, some, using Halloween celebrations as an excuse, were guilty of disorderly conduct, damaging buildings, throwing benches and chairs into the lagoons, pushing policemen in with them and forcibly keeping the exposition open long after the official closing time.

There is, however, no reflection on Chicago or the admirable exposition, visited by more than thirty-eight million Americans, every one of whom benefited by a most ably and unselfishly managed exposition.

Add this to "little news items" that bring "possible war in Europe nearer."

Paris is alleged to have assurances that England would back the French in any Saar plebiscite trouble.

The Saar, a rich slice of territory taken from Germanny after her defeat, is to vote for French or German domination, and French troops are prepared to enter the territory with utmost swiftness, in case of need.

You may write down also that the British, while they may theoretically "back the French in the Saar," will not become mixed up in any new war. Britishers have had as much fighting, as much standing in trenches and breathing of poison gas as they want for some time to come.

This is indicated by young gentlemen in British universities voting "under no circumstances" to fight again for King and country.

Germany, listening to rumors of French military occupation in the Saar, warns the French that "you are playing with fire." It seems too soon for that fire to break out again.

It is easy to raise prices of life's necessities, as proved by everything going up, from sausages to milk.

That falling-off is bad news for milk farmers, and very bad for children, whose mothers have no magic money-wand.

It is predicted that before very long all nations will "go off the gold standard." What then would happen to the world's various monies? The talk is of "stabilization." England and America agreeing that one pound would be worth so many dollars, France agreeing that one dollar would be worth so many francs.

Such agreements should have little value. The man owning the dollar could not be forced to exchange it for francs.

The money of each country would buy anything for sale in that country.

Value of money would depend on value of things for sale. This country has the most valuable things and the greatest quantity of them.

If it showed common sense, we should be able to keep our money more valuable than that of any other country.

And, by the way, we ought to have more of it, and find some way to make it circulate, without waiting for other nations to act.

Good news about one newspaper is good for all newspapers, and publishers will be pleased to hear from W. A. Curley, editor of the New York Evening Journal, that his net paid circulation has increased more than eight thousand per day within a year.

That is circulation at three cents a copy, and circulation at three cents above 700,000 a day.

What is more important to business men that seek long es-

HEYDLER RESIGNS AS NATIONAL LEAGUE HEAD

ILL HEALTH ENDS 16-YEAR TERM AS PREXY

By Associated Press

New York, Nov. 2 — John Arnold Heydler, president of the National League of Professional Baseball Clubs since 1918, today announced his resignation, because of ill health. It has been accepted by the league.

Heydler has served continuously as president of the league since 1918. Previously he had been a secretary and treasurer of the major circuit under Presidents Pulliam, Lynch and Tener. Twice during those years he was called on to act as president.

He was first chosen as a league official in 1907 to relieve Pulliam of the duties of secretary and treasurer. When the later died suddenly two years later, he assumed the duties of acting president until Thomas J. Lynch was elected at the anual meeting in 1909.

HEYDLER STEPS IN

When the club owners elected John K. Tener president in 1913, he was then governor of Pennsylvania and accepted the post on condition that he be permitted to serve out his term as governor. Meanwhile, much of the routine work of the president's office was performed by Heydler. Tener resigned in August 1918 and again Heydler stepped into run the affairs of the league for the remainder of the season.

At the anualmeeting that year, the club owners recognized his service and ability and elected him president, secretary and treasurer. He continued to perform the duties of the three offices since.

INSULL TELLS OF $500,000 SALARY

By Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 2—Thirteen salaries, paid to Samuel Insull by his companies, gave him a pay check of roughly a half million dollars in 1930 and 1931, Insull admitted today under cross-examination in his mail fraud trial.

Prosecutor Leslie E. Salter asked about 13 salaries paid to Insull in as many questions. To all Insull answered, "Yes, sir."

Insull had testified that he formed the first of this investment trusts, Insull Utility Investments, to insure control of his huge public utility system.

"You also had a personal motive, did you not, in wanting to maintain the Insull management?" Salter asked.

ADMITS BIG SALARY

"Excuse me," asked Insull "What do you mean?"

"Well, you were receiving from these various Insull companies in the neighborhood of a half million dollars in salary?"

"Yes, sir."

"To what extent at last you had some personal motive in wanting to see the control of these companies kept by you and your associates, didn't you?" Salter asked dryly.

"You may think that is the motive," said Insull, "I don't."

Insull turned to the jury and said:

"I will say to the jury that I received these salaries, and I think that ordinarily, gentlemen, the inborer is worthy of his hire."

HOW HE WAS PAID

The salaries were listed as $75,000 from the Commonwealth Edison Company, $75,000 from the Commonwealth Subsidiary Corporation, $75,000 from the Peoples Gas Light & Coke Company, $25,000 from the Peoples Gas Subsidiary Corporation, $50,000 from the Public Service Company of Illinois, $36,000 from the Public Service Subsidiary Corporations, $50,000 from Middle West Utilities Company, $8,383.33 from the Midland United Company, $25,000 from the Chicago Rapid Transit Company, $12,489 from the Chicago North Shore & Milwaukee Railroad $7500 from the Chicago Aurora & Elgin railway, $24,000 from the Peabody Coal Company, $18,000 from the Midland Utilities Investment Corporation.

They made a total for 1929 of $481,000.

Insull's salaries not only held up during 1930 and 1931, but he received two "raises," he testified under questioning.

Fired Point Blank at Husband, Then Shot Wife in Head

Lowell, Nov. 2—This is the alleged confession of Mitchell Gondek, 22-year-old Lowell youth, in the killing of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Caouette, as given out by Police Superintendent Donney of Lowell today.

"I first broke into the Caouette home on Thanksgiving eve, 1933. It was on that occasion that I stole the radio set the police have been looking for and recovered parts of.

"Three weeks before the murder I went to Varnum avenue every day on my bicycle and entered a road a short distance this side of the home.

"I always went up that road near the pond about 100 yards south of the Caouette home and then through the woods in back of the house. I'd stay there sometime watching the house every day.

"The day of the murder I rode on my bicycle and entered the road just this side of the house.

"As I passed the house I could see a woman inside the house. I couldn't tell what she was doing, but I know I saw some woman.

"I went along down the road a little way into the woods and left my bicycle. I climbed over a stone wall

LOWELL MAN ADMITS HE KILLED 2

Lowell, Nov. 2—Mitchell Gondek, 22, of Ferry lane, arrested for a liquor store break, confessed today, according to police, that he killed Mr. and Mrs. Paul Caouette, formerly of Somerville, on their chicken farm near the Dracut line last June.

He was immediately charged with the double murders which had baffled police for five months.

At first only a routine prisoner, the youth, police said, made one admission after another and was soon entagled in the meshes of the murder case.

WANTED TO "TRY GUNS"

A whim of a half-crazed, unemployed mill worker was revealed by the confession as the cause of the murders, the police announced.

The killing of the Caouettes behind their lonely little farm house on the outskirts of Lowell was one of the most puzzling in the state's crime annals.

Gondek, according to police, explained:

"I killed them because I wanted to use the guns I stole from the home of Traffic Officer John Whalen."

Gondek displayed no emotion, officers said.

The solution of the mysterious crime came out of a clear sky. Gondek was arrested last night, charged with burglarizing a liquor store. Suspected of half a dozen other breaks, he was questioned by the police.

ADMITS RADIO THEFT

With each answer Gondek, according to his inquisitors, involved himself further in a tangled skein of suspicion. Suddenly he admitted that it was he who had entered the Caouette home a year ago to steal a radio.

More questions and he admitted that it was he who had broken into the home of Officer Whalen and had taken the policeman's 32-calibre Colt automatic and 38-calibre Smith & Wesson service revolver.

The theft of these weapons had been reported immediately after the murder of the 28-year-old former Somerville man and his 26-year-old wife Captain Charles Van Amburgh, state police ballistics expert, established at the time that a bullet taken from the head of Mrs. Caouette corresponded with that in the Colt.

INVESTIGATORS CALLED

As soon as Gondek made his single admission that he was the thief of these weapons, Police Superintendent Hugh Downey and

CURLEY URGES 30-HOUR WEEK

By FRANK REILLY

James M. Curley, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, today called upon the business men and industrialists of Massachusetts to adopt the 30-hour working week without reduction of present wages as a means of banishing poverty from the state and of curbing crime and disease.

Curley declared that after devoting 25 years to study and research he is convinced that the 30-hour week is the solution of the unemployment problem in Massachusetts and the nation.

At the same time automatic machinery must be controlled and the human element be given greater consideration by the employers of th. state, he said. Continuing he declared:

"Until now, life, liberty in its truest sense, and the pursuit of happiness have been the privilege of the 4 per cent of Americans who control 80 per cent of the wealth of the nation. That pic-

VAST BUILDING BOOM STARTED

By Associated Press

Washington, Nov. 2—President Roosevelt, ever-ruling his housing administrator on interest rates to aid "the great mass of our people," launched today a gigantic home-building campaign which may aim at a 15 thousand million dollar construction boom during the next 20 years.

Setting a "basic maximum" interest rate of 5 per cent for the whole nation, the administration announced regulations under which home-building will be insured up to 80 per cent of the appraised value.

James A. Moffatt, former Standard Oil executive whom the President drafted to be his housing administrator, thought the interest would be 6 per cent in some sections, but the President disagreed.

The President told Moffatt in hi. letter:

"I am firm in the conviction that every practical attempt at lowering the cost of homes to the great mass of our people is worthy of our best efforts. It is time to make these lower interest rates apply to every part of the country."

Besides the 5 per cent interest, there will be a service charge of ½ of 1 per cent yearly on new

MURTON HURT BY NORMA'S 'DON'T-CARE' ATTITUDE

Extra guards have been placed over Murton Millen, his brother Irving, and Abe Faber in Dedham jail as a result of Murton's suspected suicide plan, it was learned today.

Since a meta button, sharpened to razor keenness on the concrete floor, was discovered in Murton's cell, an extra guard has been placed on each shift, Sheriff Samuel H. Capen said.

At the same time it as wlearned that indifference on the part of Norma Brighton Millen, the girl he married a year ago, has been worrying Murton forweeks.

However, authorities do not connect the machine gun slayers worry over Norma with his suspected suicide plan.

"Murton is declared to have said a few weeks ago: "I know the por kid got a tough break, but I don't see why she should treat me this way."

IGNORES MURTON'S CELL

Norma on her way to her daily exercise in the jail yard passes through the rotunda overlooking the cells of Murton, Irving and Faber, all of whom are awaiting sentence of death for murder in the Needham bank holdup.

But Norma, serving a year as an accessory after the fact to the robbery and slaying of Patrolmen Forbes McLeod and Frank Haddock, never glances at Murton's cell, guards say.

Nor does she, while in the yard, glance toward the Pit window, through which Murton watches her daily.

It was learned that Murton, Irving and Faber are allowed to shave every third day at a small table set up in the cell block. A small mirror is provided along with hot water, brush, soap, towels and safety razor.

While three guards watch intently less than an arm's length away each of the three convicted men shaves himself.

Norma's indifference toward him causes a fit of dejection to come over Murton during his exercise periods.

Once back in the cell Murton is talgative, has a barbed humor and interests himself in a chess book and in fashioning chessmen out of bread.

Murton's bread chessmen, work upon which he started several weeks ago, have been the subject of much joking by Irving and the guards.

Never has Murton played chess but he surprised the guards by asking for a book on chess from the jail library, and a day later he was turning to sculpture in bread.

When Irving learned of the bread sculpture he laughed, but Murton, unperturbed, continued at his pastime. Now he has 12 figures completed, and although all his other privileges, except his exercise period, were taken from him when the sharpened uniform button was discovered, he was allowed to keep the chessmn.

MOTHER KEPT AWAY

Since they were found guilty, Mrs. Millen, mother of Murton and Irving has not visited them in the jail, it was also disclosed today, due to fear of the family that visits would impose too great an emotional strain upon her.

One of the guards admitted today they would prefer a similar absence on the part of Abe Faber's mother, who weeps continually through each visit because Faber will not talk.

Mrs. Hauptmann in Her Wrecked Home

Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, wife of Lindbergh kidnaping suspect, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, complained bitterly when New York city police permitted her to return to her Bronx apartment. She is shown amid the wreckage made by police in their search for ransom money or other evidence against her husband. Even her baby's Teddy bear was ripped open, she says. FAWCETT IS OUT AS HAUPTMANN COUNSEL

By International News Service

New York, Nov. 2—James W. Fawcett was dropped today as defense counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann in his coming trial on charges of murdering the Lindbergh baby.

The announcement that the man who had led Hauptmann's fight against extradition in New York would no longer defend was amde by the prisoner's wife, Mrs. Anni Hauptmann.

Mrs. Hauptmann said that she had retained Lloyd Fisher of Flemington, N. J., as New Jersey counsel, and Edward J. Reilly, a Brooklyn attorney with an extensive record in defending criminals, to act as chief counsel.

Mrs. Hauptmann handed out a brief typewritten statement as she left Fawcett's office in Brooklyn today.

It read:

"Mr. Fawcett has been very kind and I appreciate his aid since Richard's arrest.

"We part the best of friends."

Mrs. Hauptmann then left immediately for Flemington with Harry Whitney whom she describes as her "business representative."

Fawcett had been in the case since the day after Hauptmann's arrest. He appeared at that time and explained that he had been retained to represent the prisoner by "friends of the family."

It later developed that Fawcett had been employed by Mrs. Hauptmann and that he was being paid from a sum of $10,000 which she had deposited in New York banks for several years and which she said was her life savings.

Swiss Arm to Battle Germans at Border

By International News Service

Paris, Nov. 2—Swiss armament factories are operating at full speed to execute the rearmament program of the Swiss General Staff, it was learned today in French military circles.

More than forty million Swiss francs, or half the special appropriation voted last winter, have been spent on heavy cannon, rapid-fire anti-aircraft guns, quick-fire mountain artillery, and war planes as peaceful Switzerland rushed to prepare her defenses against possible attacks.

Aircraft plants utilizing foreign patents are reported to be working day and night. Large numbers of French pursuit and bombing planes are being turned out.

Fortifications have been started along the German frontier from Lake Constance to Basle. The work will be accelerated next spring. The fortifications consist of reinforced concrete blockhouses to protect the Rhine bridgeheads. A second line of fortifications is planned to cover the first line. Special efforts are being made to transform the Hauenstein Mountains in the Basle-Olten region into a veritable Rock of Gibraltar.

The Swiss general staff has also laid down plans to fortify the French frontier reglon of Lake Geneva, but due to the general belief that Switzerland's vulnerable spot is the German frontier, all energies are bent on fortifying the Lake Constance-Basle line.

It was the publication of alleged German plans to invade France via Switzerland that was partly responsible for the voting of the special appropriations.

Although Switzerland has no standing army, it can mobilize 400,000 men in two days.

Italy Waits French Call to Aid Saar Invasion

By Associated Press

Rome, Nov. 2—The foreign office expected France today to seek support in Rome for her decision to send troops into the Saar if a German outbreak follows the January 13 plebiscite.

The step would be similar to one taken by Frances in London.

Italy will be consulted with England, a foreign office spokesman said, because this country likewise is a signatory to the Locarno pact.

Asked what would be the Italian attitude, the spokesman replied that Italy's chief position is that the Saar problem should not lead to war.

MEXICO CLERGY FACES EXILE

By Associated Press

Mexico, Nov. 2—Some observers said today an investigation by the attorney general's department into charges that Catholics planned an armed movement to overthrow the government may result in the closing of every church in Mexico and the expulsion of every priest.

President Abelardo Rodriguez made the charge and ordered the investigation.

Catholic leaders, including Archbishop Pascual Diaz, denied revolutionary intentions.

A Cainolic priest and 15 other persons were arrested near Torreon, state of Coahuila, charged with sedition. They were brought to Torreon to await trial.

Ex-Boston Teacher Suicide in West

St. Louis, Nov. 2 (AP)—Clyde L. Driscoll, 37, teacher of French and assistant athletic coach in the Country Day School here, shot himself to death last night in his home in University City with a 22-caliber rifle. His wife found him dead in a clothes closet. A. B. Sturgis, a fellow-teacher, said Driscoll had been ill several weeks and seemed depressed. Driscoll had been a teacher at Country Day School since 1927, coming here from Boston.

AMBULANCE HIT, SIX INJURED

Springfield, Nov. 2—Six persons, including two policemen, were injured today, two of them perhaps fatally, in a series of connected motor mishaps.

In Wesson Memorial Hospital, with their names on the danger llet are Patrolman Stephen Chisholm of 88 Melrose street, with a possible fractured skull, and Mrs. Alexander Reed, 59, of 120 Alderman street, who has a fractured skull.

Also at Wesson, but with injuries lese serious, are Alexander Reed, 62, of the Alderman street address; Mrs. Alice Rogers, 53, sister of Mrs. Reed and George H. L. Johnson, 55, of 62 Siebbins street. At Mercy Hospital, but with lesser injuries, is Patrolman John J. Connor, Jr., of Tyler street.

Both policemen were injured when an ambulance carrying the Reeds and Mrs. Rogers to Wesson Memorial was struck and overturned by an oil tank truck at Union and Oak streets, the ambulance in its overturning striking the car of Johnson, and overturning that.

CANCER Blamed ON FOOD

SAVANT ATTACK OVERCOOKING

STARCH, MEAT CHANGED BY CHARRING

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL
Universal Service Science Editor

New York, Nov. 2—Discovery that cancer may be caused by over-cooked foods was ranked today as important as the discovery of tuberculosis germs by Robert Koch in 1882.

Professor Francis Carter chief scientific speaker on cancer research and director of the Cancer Research Institute, in an address here said:

"What the discovery of the germ which causes tuberculosis some 50 years accomplished for the whole germ theory of disease has now been accomplished by demonstration that cancer is produced by certain chemical compounds.

"In coal tar a definite material, dibenzpyrene, is a cancer-producer. Hydrogen and carbon have been combined to result in dibenthracene, also a cancer-causer.

"Lastly, a bile acid of the body has been converted into methyl cholanthrene, a cancer-producer. Such a process might be the cause of cancer in the body itself."

One application of the theory explained by Professor Wood is that eating of burned or overcooked foods, such as charred toast and meats, should be avoided. In becoming charred, some of the hydrocarbons of the starch and meats might become changed into cancer-causing materials, Dr. Wood hinted.

CHILD TOOK FOUR GLASSES OF GARGLE

By Universal Service

New York, Nov. 2—A mother grieving over the death of her infant son learned that she had been the innocent cause of his death. She had misinterpreted a doctor's instructions on the telephone and unknowingly poisoned the child.

The baby was three-year-old Murray S. Symth, grandson of Herbert C. Smyth, attorney for Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney in the Gloria Vanderbilt custody case. He was the son of the attorney's youngest son, Murray O. Smyth, American Locomotive Company executive.

Last Sunday the child's parents found him suffering with a sore throat when they returned to their town home after a week-end in a suburb. Mrs. Smyth phoned a baby specialist who had treated Murray since birth. Mrs. Smyth understood his instructions to be:

"Prepare a level teaspoonful of chlorate of potash in a glass of water. Give the baby a glass every hour."

The child was given four glasses of the preparation, an hour apart, on Wednesday. He refused the fifth glass and became violently ill. In the afternoon he died at New York Hospital.

When Assistant District-Attorney Price investigated, Dr. Stimson told him his directions had been to use the mixture as a mouth rinse and to give the child a teaspoonful, not a glassful every hour. The mother was prostrated when she was told.

CITY OF STOGIE GALS

BIG CIGAR Women PUFF ON

By Associated Press

New York, Nov. 2—The cigar smoking women of Denmark almost caused Ruth Slenczynski to lose the poise which helped her to become the musical sensation of last season.

"Copenhagen is a very nice city, but no comparison to our U. S. A. cities," she writes a friend here. "Over here all the ladies in the restaurants, as well as in the street, smoke great big cigars. It looks so funny."

Ruth, now nine going on ten, got very extensive notices in all the Copenhagen papers.

"I do not know what the critics say because neither of us understand Danish," she adds. "But my daddy (who is the worst critic I know) was very pleased with my playing so I think the critics must be good, too."

RADCLIFFE HAS GUEST PROBLEM

Came the dawn at Radcliffe College today and with it the disturbing problem of what to do with a drake that was wobbling around Barnard Hall.

The drake had spent the night there. He liked it. He wouldn't be caught and he wouldn't leave. And to make it all the more exciting he was supposed to belong at Harvard.

Two Harvard undergraduates were reputedly owners of the wanderer, but they must have known he had fled, yet they made no report to anyone in authority. Therefore the Radcliffe girls had no way of knowing just whose bird it was.

PRINCE'S EMBRACE CHEERS MRS. VANDERBILT AT TRIAL

By International News Service

New York, Nov. 2—Fighting for custody of 10-year-old Gloria Vanderbilt, the child's mother, Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt, resumed the witness stand in supreme court today.

She was pale and drawn from the strain of testifying for two days in answer to Mrs. Whitney's charge that she was an unfit parent.

Her former fiance, Prince Gottfried Zu Hohenlohe, kissed her hand when she arrived at the courtroom with a trained nurse. Mrs. Vanderbilt smiled wanly at the prince.

Justice John F. Carew, who is hearing the case, conferred with opposing counsel in his chambers for thirty minutes before court convened.

It was believed the conference concerned letters written to Mrs. Vanderbilt by Thomas H. Gilchrist, co-guardian of little Gloria's $2,800,000 estate.

Harry Hays Morgan, Mrs. Vanderbilt's brother, and another sister, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, Jr., were present when she took the stand. Mrs. Whitney and her daughter, Mrs. G. MacCulloch Miller, also were there.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was to undergo a gruelling ordeal—the attempt to break down her story of devotion to her child.

It was believed the case would be closed today, even if a night session were necessary, or at the latest tomorrow. Justice Carew has indicated his decision will be made immediately, without a written opinion, and thus it is possible little Gloria may sleep in her mother's home tonight.

Lady Furness, who was in court with Mrs. Thaw, was hopeful the five-week hearing would end today because of Mrs. Vanderbilt's ill health.

Frank apprehension for Mrs. Vanderbilt if the child should be taken from her was expressed by Lady Furness. She said:

"I'm afraid anything might happen. I hope the decision will be handed down today because I doubt if my sister can stand the strain any longer. You know she has a fluttery heart and I am afraid for her. If this decision ever went against her—and if there is any justice I know it can't—I'm afraid anything might happen."

Whatever the ultimate outcome—whether little Gloria is restored to her mother or is given in custody of her paternal aunt, Mrs. Whitney, Lady Furness will stay close to her widowed sister.

Poet Betrayer Is on Stand

By Universal Service

Woodland, Cal., Nov. 2 — The woman who betrayed to Judson C. Doke, former San Leandro city official, the alleged unfaithfulness of Helen Louise Doke, his wife, in her "white hibiscus" romance with Lamar Hollingshead sent Doke's trial for the murder of the youthful poet last July to a dramatic climax.

From Mrs. Elizabeth Inglis came the fateful story of the disclosures that brought Hollingshead from tryste with his "white hibiscus," Mrs. Doke, to a rendezvous with death.

Her testimony came after Prosecutor C. C. McDonald had moved methodically through the most damaging day the defense has yet experienced.

Under McDonald's direct examination, Mrs. Inglis haltingly told of two conversations with Doke shortly before the tragedy. Although it was not brought out in testimony, she is the woman who served as intermediary for the "white hibiscus" and the poet.

Mrs. Inglis testified:

"I told him it would be better to keep her in San Leandro. Then I saw him again the evening of July 25, at his home. At that time I told him Helen had gone to extremes in her infatuation with Hollingshead, that I had some letters of his to her."

In Seclusion During 'Love-Killing' Trial

While her husband is on trial for a murder heallegedly committed because of fear of losing her love, Mrs. Helen Louise Doke of San Leandro, Cal., is in seclusion far from the Woodland County courthouse. The victim of the killing was Lamar Hollingshead, college student, poet, and supposed admirer of Mrs. Doke. The defendant in the murder trial is Judson C. Doke, former San Leandro city official. Arrest Solves Double Slaying

Deputy Superintendent Michael Winn decided to take him to the Caouette home in Tyngsboro lane. State Detectives Edward J. Sherlock and Edward P. O'Neill, both attached to the office of District Attorney Warren A. Bishop and both working on the case, were summoned.

But before they could reach Lowell Gondek, according to local authorities, admitted that he was the killer.

"I did it," he said almost as soon as he reached the scene of the crime.

Gondek is alleged to have said he concealed himself in the lee of a hen house until he heard Caouette drive up in his car, then stepped out and fired on the man as he was walking away from the automobile.

TELLS OF SHOTS

Mrs. Caouette, who had been hanging baby clothes on a wash line nearer their cottage, heard the shot and turned to see her husband fall. As she ran toward him, Gondek fired on her—almost point-blank, according to the police version of his confession.

Then, he is reported to have said, he turned to see Caouette—still alive—dragging himself toward his automobile. Gondek, according to the police, stepped toward him and fired several more shots at him.

Then he dragged the body into the henhouse where it was found at 7.30 that evening by Mrs. James A. Manning, mother of the slain man, on her return with her husband, Dr. James A. Manning, from his Somerville office.

Dr. Manning had bought the little farm for Caouette when ill health forced the latter to retire from his Somerville radio business, and he and his wife were spending the summer there.

RETURNED TO COTTAGE

Then, according to Gondek's alleged story, he stepped to Mrs. Caouette's body, took a cloth from the wash line and spread it over her face. After that he returned to her husband's body in the hen house and went through his pants' pockets. According to the police, he took 30 cents and left $17.

Still apparently unimpressed by the enormity of the deed and certainly without the least panic, Gondek is alleged to have walked into the little cottage where the Caouettes' 18-months-old baby daughter was asleep in her crib and where her luncheon was cooking on the stove.

He insisted, however, according to the police, that he took nothing from the house. And nothing was reported as missing at the time of the crime, causing the authorities to abandon the theory that the crimes were the work of a surprised burglar.

LEFT ON BICYCLE

Then, according to the alleged confession, Gondek calmly left the little poultry farm on his bicycle. The police this afternoon began to search a swamp into which he is said to have thrown the murder weapon.

Although suspected of a number of burglaries, police said that Gondek had no criminal record. Nor has his alleged peculiar behavior ever been brought to the attention of a medical man.

The crime to which he is said to have confessed today, left criminal investigators almost completely at sea for months. They quickly dismissed all theories that might have involved any member of the family, pointing out that the Caouettes and the Mannings had always lived in the utmost harmony.

With the robbery theory also eliminated, the authorities worked for a time on the possibility that the crimes might have been those of a tramp who was surprised in the act of stealing poultry. But after a time they were forced to abandon this, too and walked into the woods back of the house and over to the rear hen houses.

"After I reached this hen house I waited for about 10 minutes. A little while later I saw Caouette coming towards this hen house.

"He had something in his hand. I thought it was hen feed. I watched him coming nearer the hen house and then he opened one of the doors.

"He hesitated a moment after he opened this hen house door and as he did I let him have it in the chest. I don't think I was any further away than two or three feet from him when I fired.

SCREAMS BRING WIFE

"I don't think he had a chance to see me except a moment before I fired, because I was hiding right behind the hen house all the time.

"After I shot him he staggered back through the yard. I followed him along towards his house as he staggered.

"He probably took about ten steps backwards when I saw Mrs. Caouette coming through the yard. He did a little screaming and I guess that's what brought his wife to him.

"She started coming towards me. She was hollering and screaming. She kept throwing her arms up in the air and pulling at her hair.

SHOOTS WIFE IN HEAD

"When she finally got right up close to me I shot her in the forehead. She dropped in her tracks.

"Meanwhile Caouette was still staggering in circles towards his automobile.

"As he reached his automobile he hesitated for a moment, then he dropped on his face and rolled over onto his back.

"I went over and leaned over close to look at him. He appeared to me to be breathing his last.

"I then went into the house and as I reached the front staircase inside I heard a baby crying. I went up stairs and saw the baby in its crib. I took a strong box and brought it down stairs.

LEAVES BOX BEHIND

"I didn't take the box with me. After I got down stairs I decided that I didn't want to be caught with the box as I threw it onto the divan in the front room.

"I then went back out into the yard and much to my surprise Caouette, who I surely thought was dead, had succeeded in getting back onto his feet and into his automobile.

"I rushed over towards the machine again and he was trying to start the motor.

"I went right up close to him again and took out my gun and shot him again through the chest. Then I put the gun up to his head and fired again.

"He then slumped back into the machine dead.

DRAGGED FROM AUTO

"I then grabbed hold of him by the legs and dragged him out of the automobile across the lawn and into the hen house.

"I put him inside the hen house and shut the door. The pillow in the car was bloody so I took that and carried it back into the kitchen and threw it on the floor.

"I went back into the yard again and over to the body of Mrs. Caouette. I took a baby's diaper off the line and dropped it over her face.

"I then got another diaper and wrapped the gun inside that. Then I went back to the woods and got my bicycle and rode to Lowell."

Babe Cheered by 100,000 Japs

By Associated Press

Tokio, Nov. 2—Diplomats and admirals are arguing over oil and navies, but the Japanese populace found a common ground of agreement today with Americans—baseball and Babe Ruth.

Police reserves were called to handle throngs along the Ginza, Tokio's Broadway, when a touring team of American League stars, including the Babe, arrived from Yokohama.

As the motors drove slowly to a hotel all other traffic was halted. More than 100,000 persons jammed the street, leaving only a narrow path.

A. & P. DECISION EXPECTED FROM WASHINGTON

By International News Service

New York, Nov. 2—The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company remained undecided today whether to reopen the organization's 200 stores in Cleveland, which were closed recently because of labor trouble.

Following a conference at the company's headquarters here between officials of the firm and supervisors from the Cleveland area, President John A. Hartford said no decision had been reached. Hartford said the plan proposed by the National Labor Relations Board for ending the company's labor troubles in the Cleveland district, was discussed.

Meanwhile, James Butler, Jr., head of the James Butler Grocery Company, continued today to decline to deal with officers of the Grocery Chain Store Executives and Employes Association, who appeared at his office yesterday in an attempt to discuss with him a contract demanding a 25 per cent pay increase and adjustment of working conditions.

Cleveland, Nov. 2 (INS)—The situation in the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company labor dispute here remained unchanged today as word was awaited from the National Labor Relations Board in Washington.

According to company officials and leaders of the seven unions involved, decision as to whether the 300 closed A. & P. stores here will reopen probably will be announced from Washington.

The action of the unions can be taken through their executive boards, with but one exception, it was learned. The exception is the Retail Clerks and Managers Union, which is expected to submit the seven-point peace plan to its membership for a vote sometime today.

Meanwhile, sentiment in labor ranks here grew more optimistic. It was generally believed that the peace proposal would be accepted by both sides and that the stores in the Cleveland area would be reopened by the first of next week.

What, No Quintuplets? Santa'll Fix It

When you look in your stocking Christmas morning, you are just as apt as not to find yourself a five-fold parent. Doll babies, this year, come by quintuplets, after the fashion set by the Dionne family of Ontario. Here is Marguerite Farwell, toy store clerk, showing a sample "set." There's a nursing bottle for each baby but it seems they share a "family" hot water bottle. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

CARDINAL HOME FROM ROME

In excellent health, Cardinal O'Connell returned to Boston today from his "ad Limina" visit to the Vatican.

In an interview on the steamship Boston, on which he returned from New York, he said:

"I gave the Holy Father a copy of my autobiography, 'Recollections of Seventy Years.' He was delighted to get my book and turning the pages he came to the picture of my mother.

"Then he said, 'A wonderful gift of God is a good mother. I see in her face the qualities of a good administrator. You must have inherited it.'

"In looking through it further, His Holiness came to a picture of me when I was a young priest. He remarked, 'But you have changed since then.' The Holy Father told me he had seen a copy of my autobiography on the shelves of the Vatican library. He said, 'I was afraid you might forget to send one to the librarian.'"

His Eminence was in good spirit and anticipated the first question of reporters who met him at the dock. He said:

"You needn't ask. We had a very nice trip."

The cardinal was accompanied on the trip from New York by his personal secretary, Rev. J. F. Minihan. Right Rev. Mgr. Michael J. Splaine, who accompanied Cardinal O'Connell to the Vatican, returned from New York by tram.

The cardinal left Boston Sept. 23 to make his visit to the Pope as required by common law. He arrived in New York yesterday. In answer to questions by interviewers concerning his thoughts on President Roosevelt's recovery program, he said:

"Nobody knows what the future has in store for mankind. I do not feel competent to answer the question whether he is pursuing the right policy or not. At least he is trying to do something."

ELEVATOR MEN TO END STRIKE

By Associated Press

New York, Nov. 2—Elevator service in more than 200 buildings in the garment center remained halted today, union officials said, as the second day of the building service workers strike began.

While thousands of workers faced the prospect again of long trudges up staircases, arrangements were being made to negotiate the differences between building owners and members of the Building Service Employes' International Union, Local 32B, whose president, James S. Bambrick, called the strike yesterday.

Bambrick today said about 200 owners had agreed to union terms, and service would be restored in those buildings. The agreements, he said, gave about 5000 workers a 48-hour week and an average increase of $2 weekly in pay.

VICTORY RALLY SET FOR G. O. P. TOMORROW

Republicans are all set for the big G. O. P. victory rally in Tremont Temple tomorrow night.

From the home ward of Gaspar G. Bacon in Jamaica Plain, will come one of the largest contingents in which, it is claimed, will be many former Democrats who are this year supporting Bacon's candidacy for governor.

Speakers in addition to Bacon will include John W. Haigis, candidate for lieutenant governor; Frederic W. Cook, candidate for re-election as secretary of state, and Joseph E. Warner, candidate for re-election as attorney general. They will be introduced by former District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell of Middlesex County, who will preside at the meeting.

MANY GROUPS EXPECTED

Large delegations are coming from every city and town in Greater Boston. The women's division will be out in force. A cheering section has been reserved for the "Young Republicans," led by their state chairman, Wallace Stearns.

Three former governors, Channing H. Cox, Frank G. Allen and Alvan T. Fuller have been invited.

Speaking at rallies in Stoneham, Winchester and Reading, Bacon answered repeated charges of his Democratic opponent relative to the "House of Morgan preferred list." He added:

"I have never been in any way connected with his firm's business. I have devoted all my life to the practice of law and to public service in Boston."

CURLEY ATTACKED

Bacon then lashed into former Mayor Curley, asked him if he ever had banking connections, and inquired if he paid income taxes in 1931 and 1932.

Bacon asserted that bringing the Teapot Dome scandal into the campaign by Curley was nothing but an attempt to "drag a red herring across the trail."

He asked the former mayor to explain the Mohawk Packing Company and the legal Securities Corporation.

BIG DEMOCRAT GAINS SEEN

By Universal Service

Washington, Nov. 2—President Roosevelt has received a glowingly optimistic report from Postmaster-General Farley heralding Democratic gains in Tuesday's elections.

Although neither the White House nor the Democratic national chairman publicly commented, it was made plain the administration both hopes for and expects the defeat of Upton Sinclair in California.

Some officials, basing their belief on confidential advices from California, predicted Sinclair, life-long Socialist who captured the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, would lose to Governor Frank T. Merriam, Republican, by more than 2 to 1.

Furthermore, it was indicated that action of California Democratic leaders, like George Creel, in repudiating Sinclair, has the approval of Democratic chiefs here.

Repudiation of Sinclair by regular Democrats was said to have vastly improved the chances of the party in other sections of the country, especially east of the Mississippi.

Democratic leaders have advised the President the party will pick up Senate seats in Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia, Missouri, Maryland and New Jersey.

Democratic candidates were said to have a good chance in Rhode Island, Connecticut, Michigan, Minnesota and Pennsylvania.

Confidential Democratic reports predicted the range in the House will be between a loss of 10 seats, at worst, and a gain of 20 seats, at best.

Pecora Coming

ITALIANS PLAN PECORA FETE

When Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the Senate banking investigation committee, arrives in Boston tomorrow, he will be greeted by a delegation representing the Italian-American League, headed by the president, John A. Tomasello.

Sunday noon, he will be given a testimonial dinner by his Massachusetts friends and admirers. Sunday evening, he will be one of the principal speakers at the rally for James M. Curley at Boston Garden.

Mr. Pecora, who is on his way here from Washington, is also a member of the Federal Securities Commission.

Liberal Meeting To Boost Curley

William H. Mitchell, chairman of the Liberal Civic League, non-partisan organization with a claimed following of more than 100,000 voters in every part of the state, will hold a New Deal rally in Faneuil Hall at noon tomorrow in the interests of the election of Curley for governor, Walsh for senator, and the entire Democratic state ticket.

CURLEY URGES 30-HOUR WEEK

ture must be changed and in a same nation like ours that change must be brought about by ballots and not by bullets.

MORE JOBS NEEDED

"We must devise ways and means of providing employment for all of our people. It is the duty of the nation to find employment for its citizenship. Our people lost their jobs through the stupidity of Herbert Hoover and they will be returned to them through the medium of God's gift to America—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"With thousands of families on the relief rolls of the cities and towns of this Commonwealth and with another winter at hand my opponent, Gaspar G. Bacon, and his associates on the Republican state ticket, are making stupid attempts to divert the attention of the public from the real issue of work and wages. Every charge made against Curley by this group has faded into thin air.

"Our problem is to care for the poor and to find jobs for the heads of families. My heart goes out to the poor. I know what it is to be cold and hungry. My father died when I was 10 years old and soon thereafter I was compelled to go to work. I know that through adoption of the 30-hour working week we can put thousands of jobless men back on payrolls.

STANDS FOR PROSPERITY

"To my critics who may say that such action would be to confiscate capital invested in business, I say that only through such action can money be placed in circulation and goods taken from the shelves of stores which have been on the verge of bankruptcy for the past five years.

"The American people are their own best customers and in normal times consume 93 per cent of the products they create. If the worker is given a living wage and the jobless man is transferred from the welfare roll to a payroll prosperity will return to America almost overnight.

"In order that prosperity may return to Massachusetts the people must elect a man who will support the recovery program of President Roosevelt and not a man like my principal Republican opponent, Mr. Bacon, an engoy of the New Deal and a favored son of the House of Morgan."

Curley will speak tonight in Winchester town hall, Belmont town hall, Arlington town hall, Rindge school, Cambridge Knights of Columbus Hall, Somerville, Pitman's Academy, Medford, and Chelsea Armory.

RUBY BACKS CURLEY

Former City Councillor Israel Ruby of Dorchester, a Republican, and now an active member of the Curley campaign committee, predicted today that 20,000 Boston Republicans will vote for Curley next Tuesday and that nearly 150,000 others whose homes are outside the city will take similar action. He said:

"A revolution is now taking place within the ranks of the Republican party and the only ones who seem unaware of it are the group led by Lieutenant Governor Gaspar G. Bacon who have been attacking President Roosevelt and the New Deal.

"At a time when all Americans should unite under the Roosevelt banner these reactionaries are trying desperately to wreck the recovery program. I have been a lifelong Republican, but this year I am voting Curley because I know that only through his election can the recovery program be carried out efficiently in Massachusetts. I believe that every Republican owes it to his jobless neighbor to cast a vote for Curley next Tuesday."

SIMPSSON HELPS

Professor Frank L. Simpson of the Boston University law school, spoke in defense of Curley in a radio address last night.

He said that after careful investigation of the official records, he found no basis for the bitter attacks and vituperative charges which had been hurled at the candidate for governor. He said that he was convinced that had there been any foundation in fact for assertions made by Curley's political enemies, they would not have been made from a public platform, but rather in a court of law.

Making specific references to the records, Professor Simpson took in order each of the several charges that have been made against Curley, and showed, in each instance those charges were not supported by the available facts.

GOODWIN TERMS NEW DEAL JOKE

Insofar as supplying work and purchasing power, the New Deal was condemned as "a joke" by Frank A. Goodwin, Independent candidate for governor, in an address to Brockton shoe workers. Said he:

"You workers better than anyone else know that the issue 'Work and Wages' is just empty words. That is all the Democratic candidate has to offer."

Turning then to his other opponent, Gasper G. Bacon, Goodwin declared:

"You know that the old deal of the Morgans, Mellons and Bacons is worse than the New Deal. It is the special privilege deal for the few. We want a better deal, one that will put men to work, not at the miserable minimum now fixed by the New Deal, but with a living and saving wage. The Townsend old age pension plan is the only thing that will do it."

PRESIDENT TO FIX AUTO CODE FATE TODAY

By Associated Press

Washington, Nov. 2 — President Roosevelt, who is said to be gratified but silent on Henry Ford's announcement that for his company the "depression is over," is expected to prolong NRA's sway over the motor car industry.

There was every indication that before nightfall, the administration would extend for 60 or 90 days the Blue Eagle code from which Ford is a conspicuous holdout.

The President has intervened directly in an attempt to calm a row between unions and industrialists over the code. The A. F. of L. wants to change the code, which expires tomorrow. It seeks, among other things, to establish a 30-hour week and delete the famous "merit clause."

LEADERS IN PARLEY

Two months ago, when the code was extended for 60 days, Hugh S. Johnson promised labor a hearing on modification, this was opposed by manufacturers, but a temporary extension would give labor a new opportunity for achieving its goal.

White House conferences by the President, Clay Williams, NRA chairman; Walter Chrysler, and Alfred P. Sloan and Donaldson Brown of General Motors, cleared the way for action.

There were signs today that labor, despite the demand for a 30-hour work week, had concentrated on the merit clause. This permits hiring and firing of workers regardless of union affiliations.

It also became evident that Williams did not consider himself or the recovery board bound by any promises of Johnson's.

As to Ford's optimistic statement, the attitude of the administration officials was that it was fine, but that the White House itself is not making any public commitments that "prosperity is just around the corner."

FOR MILLION CARS

While Secretary Morgenthau exclaimed "Whoopee!" when he heard the good news, and RFC Chairman Jesse Jones said "Fine," the spirit of gratification did not extend to another remark by the archfoe of NRA.

There was only silence to answer Ford's statement that all business would do well to forget "the alphabetical schemes."

Ford plans to spend $415,000,000 in building 2,000,000 cars or better in 1935 falls in line with the present ideas of NRA experts. They are all for boosting output and keeping prices down. But some of them look to the drive for a 30-hour week as a threat to low costs.

You don't because Gilchrist's were smart enough to copy much higher priced coats and mark them only $29.75! Which is something to boast about in a winter FURRED COAT! And a variety so complete and so satisfying you're bound to find your type! Shawl collars of Caracul, Skunk, Blue Fox dyed Vicuna . . . Caracul yokes and muffs, Arabian Lynx dyed Coney, softest Squirrel! And no one would ever guess you paid only $29.75 . . . they look so much more! Misses' and women's sizes.

day's charge represented money found in a bag that was taken out of a house in Neptune avenue, Winthrop.

He told Judge Barnes that more time was needed to investigate an automobile theft charged against Barry, and also called attention to the fact that Geagan stands accused in the Brockton holdup.

Represented by Representative Julius H. Sobis of Ward 14, Dorchester, Geagan and Burke pleaded not guilty.

Two police lieutenants three sergeants and 26 patrolmen, all armed to the hilt and under the personal command of Captain Archibald F. Campbell, stood guard over the courthouse.

This heavy guard was only the climax of the extraordinary police precautions that had been taken since the two men were captured, and that continued until they were safely lodged in the Charles Street Jail after arraignment.

Both men were shackled to Lieutenant Frank Douglas of Winthrop, for the dash from the station there to the courthouse. Arrived, they were first taken into the adjoining police station to be viewed by officers from Chelsea and Revere.

ANGERED BY GUNS

Special details of police were assigned to the call block during all of this time, but the prisoners were freed from their shackles and Chief Pumphert handed them cigarettes.

The men were again handcuffed for their court appearance. Annoyed by the "bracelets" and the sight of so many riot guns, both prisoners became sulky, turned up their collars, threatened newspaper cameramen and screened their faces with handkerchief held in their free hands. They scurried up the wire-enclosed stairs to the courtroom as rapidly as they could.

As soon as the formalities of the arraignment were over, Geagan and Barry were taken to jail in a three-car police motorcade. An automobile full of armed officers preceded the car in which they rode and another followed them.

SOUGHT BY BROCKTON

At the same time District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing of Norfolk County and three Brockton police officials were in Boston in an attempt to persuade the Winthrop authorities to recognize the precedence of the Brockton warrant, which charges Geagan with assault and battery with intent to murder Patrolman George A. Perkins and Miss Addie Russell and Miss Doris Tripp, employes in the office of the Brockton city treasurer.

Any possibility that Geagan might be quickly turned over to the Norfolk authorities, however, was apparently precluded by his high bail, which, it was said, he would be unable to furnish.

15 Billions for Housing Boom homes, as well as an insurance premium of the same amount.

Besides aiming to encourage new home building, this second phase of the nation-wide drive under the housing act provides for mutual insurance of mortgages on existing dwellings up to 80 per cent of the appraised value, and for the organization of mortgage loan companies to sell securities based on mortgages.

The first mortgages are expected to be approved by the housing administration within a day or two. Loans will be made by banks and other private agencies, none by the government.

SEES BUILDING BOOM

The Roosevelt administration announced no total sum which it hoped would pour out in this new effort to stimulate the "durable goods" industries. But Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, suggested in a speech last night that the housing set could be used to stimulate $15,000,000,000 worth of home-building within a decade.

He calculated that each new home would mean the equivalent of the employment of two men for a whole year. Thus, if 750,000 houses a year were built, it would mean putting 1,500,000 persons back to work.

The housing administration, preparing to receive insurance applications for mortgages, announced that they may be filed in 59 offices throughout the country.

In New England these offices are located in Boston, Hartford, Conn.; Portland, Me.; Concord, N. H.; Providence, R. I. and Burlington, Vt.

Newton Miss, 4, Wins Legion Baby Prize

Although whole bevies of blue-eyed blondes turned their most bewitching baby-stares on the judges in the great Massachusetts American Legion baby contest, sponsored by James E. Welch Post and the Boston Evening American, it was to a brown-eyed brunette, with demurely lowered eyelids, that the coveted first prize was awarded last night.

First Prize Winner Barbara Condon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Condon of 33 High street, Newton Upper Falls, is four-going-on-five, she tells you, with a curtsy fit for Queen Mary herself. She received a silver loving-cup almost as tall as herself and a check for $25.

She goes to bed at seven, is up at the tick of seven and enjoys her spinach—and orange juice and milk and vegetables, generally—almost as much as Pop-Eye, the Sailorman. When she was two and a half she won a prize in a Boston American baby contest, and recently was awarded a dancing school scholarship.

More than 500 mothers and fathers and kindred baby-fans were present in Teachers' College, Huntington Hall, for ceremonies of bestowing the prizes, which included another major award, six of them going to prettily becurled members of the fair sex.

Fourteen-months-old John Derba, Jr., Jackie to Papa and Mama Derba, of 66 Ten Hill road, Somerville, whose second prize silver cup was only slightly smaller than little Miss Condon's, was every bit as pleased with it. He also received a $25 check.

He is a towhead, with wide, sky-blue eyes, a pair of sturdy legs and a lively curiosity. He is also a former prize-winner, having toddled away with first prize in a Boston drug show baby contest, when he was half his present age. He is an only child, while the first prize-winner is the third in a family of four children.

Dorothy Placey, two and a half years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Placey of 466 Green street, Cambridge, was the winner of the third prize, a silver loving cup and a $15 check.

The other seven, in the order of their rating, were Barbara Nelson, three, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Axel Nelson of 12 MacDonald street, North Quincy; Marilyn Gallo, 19 Months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gallo of 52 Winthrop avenue, Revere; Virginia Numan, four, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Numan of 19 Lyon street, Dorchester; Roberta Gallagher, three and one-half, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gallagher, Crest Beach street, Revere; Frank Spear, Jr., 19 months, of 38 Peirce street, East Milton; Barbara Ann West, two, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George West, 32 Taft avenue, Winthrop, and Joan Dooley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Dooley, 866 East Second street, South Boston.

James McGrail, 110 Oakton avenue, Dorchester; John McGrail, 110 Oakton avenue, Dorchester; Koran Arslan, Jr., 16 Tuttle street, Dorchester; Francis O'Mera, 40 Godman Hill avenue, Dorchester; Jean Ryan, 17 Carmen street, Dorchester; Richard Navah, 110 Rossiter street, Dorchester; Louis Fahey, 11 Eastman street, Dorchester; Carole Kadish, 18 Livingstone street, Dorchester; Eugene McCarthy, 37 Speedwell street, Dorchester; Joseph E. O'Connor, 24 Beach street, Dorchester; Virginia Fraser, 2086 Dorchester avenue, Dorchester; John B. O'Loughlin, 31 Myrtlebank avenue, Dorchester.

RACE BALLOT IS EXPLAINED

Voters in Tuesday's election in Massachusetts will be called upon in all parts of the state to answer four ballot questions.

The referenda includes proposals to modify the anti-steal trap law; the question of legalizing horse and dog pari-mutuel betting and the licensing of the sale of liquor in each city and town.

The Boston Evening American each day until election time will explain what your vote will mean. Today's subject refers to the pari-mutuel referendum.

Each county votes separately on this question. It appears on the ballot in two sections. One section refers only to horse racing, the other to dog racing.

Vote "Yes" on both questions if you wish to legalize betting on both sports in your county. Vote "No" if you do not wish to legalize the betting on either sport.

If you wish to permit the legalization of horse racing or dog racing alone vote "yes" only on the particular sport you prefer.

DILLINGER PLOT 'EIGHT' FREED

By International News Service

Crown Point, Ind., Nov. 2—Bleary-eyed from lack of sleep, Ernest Blunk, Crown Point jail attache, along with seven other "witnesses" held for 60 hours by Deputy Attorney-General J. Edward Barce, were back in their homes here today.

Blunk, once tried and acquitted in connection with the famous wooden-gun break of John Dillinger from the Lake County jail, asserted that he had been kidnaped and deprived of his liberty by force when Barce and state troopers routed him out of bed Tuesday.

The jail attache said that during the three-day game Barce and his brainstorming troupe played over Northern Indiana, the "witnesses" were hurried from one hotel to another, fed irregularly, deprived of sleep and "threatened time and again" by Sander Binger, 6-foot cast Chicago detective who was granted a leave to go on Barce's payroll as an investigator.

HEBERT BRANDS FOE 'OUTSIDER'

Woonsocket, R. I., Nov. 2—United States Senator Felix Hebert, Republican candidate for re-election, was resting here today after launching a new attack on Peter G. Gerry, his Democratic opponent for re-election, by branding him as an "outsider" without "the qualifications to represent us."

In a speech delivered here last night the Senator said:

"My view of the outstanding issue of this campaign so far as it relates to the election of our representative from Rhode Island in the Senate is whether we have in our midst one who has qualifications to represent us there, or whether we shall seek someone from outside the borders of the state upon whom we shall confer these honors and these responsibilities."

Senator Hebert declared that it was on that issue that Gerry met defeat in his contest against Senator Metcalf in 1930 as well as in the 1928 elections. The senator also warned his audience that Gerry was no friend of the New Deal and that he would not "hang on to the New Deal band wagon no matter where the wild horses of the brain trust gallop with it."

ALIBI ATTACKED IN FIRE DEATHS

By Associated Press

Danielson, Ct., Nov. 2—Lieutenant Ross V. Urquhart, in charge of the Danielson barracks of the state police, said today Trenor Rice's stories, given by him as an alibi in the Canterbury farmhouse fire claiming the lives of his divorced wife and their little daughter, have been definitely established as untrue.

"We are satisfied that Rice was not there on the night of the fire," the police official said today. "He has told us several stories, some of which conflict, and we have checked them all. They are not true."

Rice, taken into custody this week after he visited the fire scene, told state police first that he was in a rooming house in White Plains, N. Y., on Sunday night (the night of the fire) and then that he was attending a movie on the night in question.

Rice is in the Windham County jail, held on a coroner's warrant.

Swap Editor Seeks Help

There is nothing so touching as a baby born into an atmosphere that is devoid of even the bare necessaries of life.

But one such infant has been brought to the attention of the Swap Editor. The child has no bassinet or carriage.

One ailing woman writes in that for lack of a coat (size 42) and dress she cannot venture outdoors for the fresh air which is so necessary for the recovery of her health.

A young boy of 15, six feet tall, writes a pleading note for an overcoat and a pair of shoes, size 8½.

The unfortunate wife of a man serving a sentence at Deer Island describes a picture of dire poverty. She has five children and her only means of support is what her husband earns at the penitentiary. And it is a pitiful mite.

She is in particular need of boys' jackets, sizes 7 and 10. Long trousers for her 15-year-old son would be appreciated. And miscellaneous clothing for girls wearing sizes 17, 13 and 11 would find use in the same family.

MRS. SPEER ILL, POLICE PROBERS ARE INFORMED

Northfield, Nov. 2—When state police asked that Mrs. Charlotte Holly Speer, widow of Dr. Elliott Speer, murdered headmaster of Mt. Ferrari. The hunt for the death weapon was continued today.

HITLER QUITS CHURCH FIGHT; BISHOPS WIN

By International News Service

Berlin, Nov. 2—The long-simmering crisis in the German church has come to a final head.

Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller, evangelical leader of Nazi Germany, whose iron-handed measures to consolidate the church aroused intense opposition, has been left by Chancellor Adolf Hitler to sink or swim.

The government has unequivocally abandoned any part in organization of the church.

ABANDON MUELLER

The Fuehrer definitely separated himself from the Mueller regime today by reinstating the entire state church councils of Wurttemberg and Bavaria, which had been thrown by aides of the reichbishop. With them, Bishop Wurm of Wurttemberg and Bishop Meiser of Bavaria went back to office. Thus two of the chief opponents of the Mueller regime resumed their full ecclesiastical powers, meaning that Hitler has elected to leave Mueller to the mercy of his enemies in the church.

VICTORY FOR BISHOPS

The opposition has thus scored a great victory. It leaves Mueller with the alternative of carrying on his fight single-handedly or resigning and quitting the Reich church structure which he built.

This is substantiated by the fact the official news agency, which hitherto suppressed all news unfavorable to Mueller and favorable to the rebels, confirmed that the government had abandoned church organization.

Peculiarly, however, the government clamped a last-minute censorship on regional statements from Stuttgart and Munich confirming the reinstatement of the two bishops.

SCORES HURT IN MINE BATTLE

By Associated Press

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 2—More than a thousand miners—members of rival unions—fought for two hours with stones and clubs at dawn today at the Number 7 colliery of the Susquehanna Collieries Company at Nanticoke.

Scores were cut and bruised.

The riot was precipitated by efforts of the newly-formed United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania to close the colliery in protest against alleged dismissal of several of their members.

United Mine Workers of America sought to keep the mine in operation.

The fighting extended from the colliery entrance over an area of several city blocks and from the sides and tops of Culm Banks, some of them 50 feet high.

Patrolman Kills Hunting Friend

Agawam, Nov. 2 (AP)—Harold H. Shaylor, 36, was instantly killed today by a charge from the shotgun of a hunting companion, Motorcycle Patrolman Roland Reed, the charge entering his brain.

Shaylor and Reed, not far apart, flushed a woodcock and both fired. Shaylor was in range of Reed's gun.

GARDNER FREED IN ROXBURY SHOOTING

Everett T. Gardner of East Weymouth, motor vehicle inspector who fatally shot George W. Borden, Negro janitor, in Roxbury last July, was found not guilty of manslaughter today by a superior court jury.

The verdict, sealed at 8 o'clock last night after four hours of deliberation by the jury, was opened before Judge David P. Dillon.

Gardner was charged with killing Borden last July 8, when Gardner and Patrolman William R. Harrison attempted to serve the janitor, at a Copeland street, Roxbury, address, with default warrants in connection with automobile law violations.

Gardner testified that Borden, while fleeing, made a threatening gesture toward his hip pocket, as if to draw a gun. He was unarmed, however.

WOMAN GUILTY IN FRAUD TRIAL

Mrs. Teresa Pota of Elmwood avenue, Somerville, charged with conspiracy to steal $14,000 in life insurance from Massachusetts savings banks, was found guilty today in superior court in a sealed verdict returned to Judge John E. Swift.

Sentence on Mrs. Pota and on Mrs. Teresa Di Paolo of Bremen street, East Boston, who pleaded guilty and testified for the government, will be imposed at 3:45 p. m. Monday by Judge Swift.

Under the law teh maximum penalty is two years in jail.

The women were charged with having conspired, in 1932, with Leonardo Iannello, now a fugitive from justice, to insure Mrs. Di Paolo's sick husband for $14,000, with Iannello taking the physical examination in Di Paolo's name.

Laborites Sweep English Elections

London, Nov. 2 (AP)—Members of the Labor party exulted today over the outcome of balloting in municipal elections yesterday.

Spokesmen said the party had a net gain of 419 seats already recorded, with 575 results still to be announced. The victory was largely at the expense of the Conservatives.

National politics were reflected in the campaign, although the issues were mostly local. Incomplete returns from London boroughs showed Labor had taken 227 Council seats from opponents.

Msgr. Sheahan, 73, Lowell Native, Dies

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 2 (INS)—The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph F. Sheahan, 73, died early today in the rectory of the Church of St. Peter where he was pastor. He collapsed shortly after arising to prepare for 6 o'clock mass.

Msgr. Sheahan was born in Lowell, Mass., July 2, 1861. He was graduated from St. Francis Xavier College, New York City in 1882 and was ordained at St. Joseph's Provincial Seminary, Troy, in 1886.

$344,029 PROFIT FOR CHICAGO'S WORLD FAIR

Chicago, Nov. 2—Profit of $344,029 will be shown by Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition when the final accounting is made, it was estimated by officials. It will be the first world's fair to show a profit.

The forecast of a profit was made on the estimate that assets are $1,977,693 and liabilities $1,633,663. This last figure includes $1,046,163 for demolition, restoration of the park and other post-fair costs, and $587,500 principal and interest on outstanding notes.

At a caravan crossroads called El Abiod Sidi Cheikh, 500 miles out in the Sahara Desert, five young French priests have established a monastery, of which the inmates will devote themselves to the welfare of desert tribes.

The costume worn by the young monks will be all white, like that of desert inhabitants, with a flaming cross and heart on the breast. Novices of any nation will be welcomed, if willing to devote their lives to the welfare work of the monastery. The young priests devoted years to learning Arabic and preparing themselves for their undertaking.

In Honolulu yesterday, Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith and his navigator, Captain P. G. Taylor, were going over their plane, preparatory to starting the last leg of their flight over the Pacific, to end at the great Oakland airport.

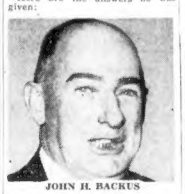
INQUIRING REPORTER TOLD FAVORITES IN CAMPAIGN

When the voters go to the polls on Nov. 6, they will be offered three candidates for the governorship of Massachusetts, former Mayor James M. Curley, Gaspar G. Bacon and Frank S. Goodwin.

For whom will Boston vote? In an effort to sound out the trend, the Boston Evening American sent out the Inquiring Reporter to ask, at random, the first five people he met.

Here are the answers he was given:



JOHN H. BACKUS

John H. Backus, of Bonney street, New Bedford, attorney.

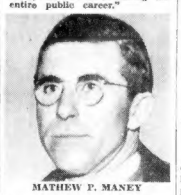
"I am going to vote for James M. Curley for governor on next Tuesday. I believe that he is the only man capable of handling the affairs of this Commonwealth in this financial crisis. If Mr. Curley is elected the wants of every man, woman and child in this State will be satisfied. He will make a humane and progressive executive.

MISS EVELYN KAPLAN

Miss Evelyn Kaplan, Chester street, Allston, a stenographer.

"I believe that the Honorable James M. Curley should be elected governor because of his progressive program, which will be beneficial to the people of this state.

"We know that during the past years, especially the years of depression, we have created the need for a man with executive ability, foresight, and realization of the everyday needs of the people. Those are the principles Mr. Curley has stood for during his entire public career."



MATHEW P. MANEY

Matthew P. Maney, Ames street, Lawrence, labor leader:

"Mr. Curley should be elected Governor because he is a friend of the poor. For over 35 years I have followed Mr. Curley and the principles he has advocated.

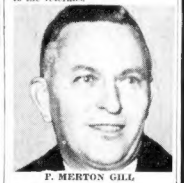
"It was several years ago, when he was mayor of Boston, that he insisted that the workingman be given a chance. And if I am not mistaken Mr. Curley has been constantly working in behalf of the laboring classes of this Commonwealth. Mr. Curley's aims, in his campaign, are for the working people."

MRS. ABRAHAM SIMONS

Mrs. Abraham Simons, Lorne street, Dorchester, widow.

"My late husband was closely associated with the lieutenant-governor, Gaspar G. Bacon, both having served in the same division during the war. I can honestly say that Mr. Bacon has always stood for the best interests of the working class and United States war veterans of this Commonwealth.

"I am sure that the veterans, especially those of the Yankee Division, have the utmost regard for Mr. Bacon and may feel well assured that he will be a friend to the veterans."



F. MERTON GILL

F. Merton Gill, salesman:

"I am heartily in favor of Frank Goodwin being elected governor of this state. As a matter of fact I am going to vote for Mr. Goodwin. I think he should be elected because, during his administration as registrar of motor vehicles and chairman of the Boston Finance Commission, he revealed to all he was not only interested in the welfare of the city, but the welfare of the citizens of the Commonwealth.

"Mr. Goodwin fought many bills at the State House which, if they had been passed, would have added extra burdens to the backs of the tax payers."

"The Big Knock-Over" - "The Thin Man" Author's New Thrilling Serial - By Dashiell Hammett

SYNOPSIS

The teller of this story is a private detective employed by a national agency that is busy trying to locate "the brains" of a huge underworld mob which has recently "knocked over" two large banks, taking them by storm in broad daylight, getting away with loot running into the millions, and leaving more than two score dead and wounded after the spectacular attack. Police are rounding up scores of suspects, but important clues leading to the knock-over leaders are scanty.

Two rooming house hangouts have just been visited by the police; in one, fourteen corpses of mobsters, poisoned or shot, have been found; in the other, six notorious criminals had been lined against a wall and executed with rifles by parties unknown. Plainly, a war to the death was on between the underworld army of more than 150 "hoods" who had participated in the bank coup . . . The detective-narrator of this story is looking for a mysterious "Big Flora," which name was written in the life blood of a victim on the wall of his rooming house execution room.

The detective-narrator and his assistant, Jack Counihan, shadow Red O'Leary, strong-arm mobster, to Larrouy's cafe, where a swarm of other thugs are gathering as midnight approaches. A girl called Nan Regan joins O'Leary. Led by Bluepoint Yancy, the gang suddenly jumps O'Leary, chairs are swung, bottles and bullets fly, while the private detectives help Red and his girl make a getaway through a rear door.

While scuffling with two thugs in the area-way, Counihan having been left behind when he was knocked cold by O'Leary for fluffing with the latter's girl, the detective-narrator of this story shoots Red in the back, apparently by accident. The girl and the sleuth bundle O'Leary into an auto. His wound is not dangerous but he needs prompt medical attention, and insists on being taken to a hotel.

CHAPTER X

I got up, knelt on the seat, and leaned back to work on him. He was weak. He couldn't have much resistance left. Bulldozing a man who might after all be dying wasn't gentlemanly, but I had invested a lot of trouble in this egg trying to get him to lead me to his friends, and I wasn't going to quit in the stretch.

For a while it looked as if he wasn't weak enough yet, as if I'd have to shoot him again. But the girl sided with me, and between us we finally convinced him that his only safe bet was to go somewhere where he could hide while he got the right kind of care. We didn't actually convince him—we wore him out and he gave in because he was too weak to argue longer. He gave me an address out by Holly Park.

Hoping for the best, I pointed the machine thither.

The house was a small one in a row of small houses. We took the big boy out of the car and, between us, to the door. He could just about make it with our help. The street was dark. No light showed from the house. I rang the bell.

Nothing happened. I rang again, and then once more.

"Who is it?" a harsh voice demanded from the inside.

"Red's been hurt," I said.

Silence for a while. Then the door opened half a foot. Through the opening a light came from the interior, enough light to show the flat face and bulging jaw muscles of the skull cracker who had been the Motsa Kid's guardian and executioner.

HOLDS THE DOOR

"What the hell?" he asked.

"Red was jumped. They got him," I explained, pushing the limp giant forward.

We didn't crash the gate that way. The skull-cracker held the door as it was.

"You'll wait," he said, and shut the door in our faces. His voice sounded from within, "Flora." That was all right—Red had brought us to the right place.

When he opened the door again he opened it all the way, and Nancy Regan and I took our burden into the hall. Beside the skull-cracker stood a woman in a low-cut black silk gown—Big Flora, I supposed.

She stood at least five feet ten in her high-heeled slippers. They were small slippers, and I noticed that her ringless hands were small. The rest of her wasn't. She was broad-shouldered, deep-bosomed, thick-armed, with a pink throat which for all its smoothness, was muscled like a wrestler's. She was about my age—close to forty—with very pink skin, and a handsome, brutal face. Her deep-set eyes were gray, her thick lips were well-shaped, her nose was just broad enough and curved enough to give her a look of strength, and she had chin enough to support it. From forehead to throat her pink skin was underlaid with smooth, thick strong muscles.

This Big Flora was no toy. She had the look and the poise of a woman who could have managed the looting and the double-crossing afterward. Unless her face and bodied, she had all the strength of physique, mind and will that would be needed, and some to spare. She was made of stronger stuff than either the ape-built bruiser at her side or the red-haired giant I was holding.

"GET A DOCTOR!"

"Well!" she asked, when the door had been closed behind us. Her voice was deep but not masculine—a voice that went well with her looks.

"Vance ganged him in Larrouy's. He took one in the back," I said.

"Who are you?"

"Get him to bed," I stalled. "We've got all night to talk."

She turned, snapping her fingers. A shabby little old man darted out of a door toward the rear. His brown eyes were very scary.

The little old man scrambled up the stairs like a rheumatic rabbit.

The skull-cracker took the girl's side of Red, and he and I carried the giant up to a room where the little man was scurrying around with basins and cloth. Flora and Nancy Regan followed us. We spread the wounded man face-down on the bed and stripped him. Blood still ran from the bullet-hole. He was unconscious.

Nancy Regan went to pieces.

"He's dying! He's dying! Get a doctor! Oh, Reddy, dearest—"

"Shut up!" said Big Flora. "The damned fool ought to crook—going to Larrouy's tonight!" She caught the little man by the shoulder and threw him at the door. "Iodine and more water," she called after him. "Give me your knife, Pogy."

The ape-built man took from his pocket a spring-knife with a long blade that had been sharpened until it was narrow and thin. This is the knife, I thought, that cut the Motsa Kid's throat.

With it, Big Flora cut the bullet out of Red O'Leary's back.

The ape-built Pogy got Nancy Regan over in a corner of the room while the operating was done. The little scared man knelt beside the bed, handing the woman what she asked for, mopping up Red's blood as it ran from the wound.

NANCY REGAN FAINTS

I stood beside Flora, smoking cigarettes from the pack she had given me. When she raised her head, I would transfer the cigarette from my mouth to hers. She would fill her lungs with a slow drag that ate half the cigarette and nod. I would take the cigarette from her mouth. She would blow out the smoke and bend to her work again. I would light another cigarette from what was left of that one, and be ready for her next smoke.

Her bare arms were blood to the elbows. Her face was damp with sweat. It was a gory mess, and it took time. But when she straightened up for the last smoke, the bullet was out of Red, the bleeding had stopped, and he was bandaged.

"Thank God that's over," I said lighting one of my own cigarettes. "Those pills you smoke are terrible."

The little scared man was cleaning up. Nancy Regan had fainted in a chair across the room, and nobody was paying any attention to her.

"Keep your eye on this gent, Pogy," Big Flora told the skull-cracker, nodding at me, "while I wash up."

I went over to the girl, rubbed her hands, put some water on her face, and got her awake.

"The bullet's out. Red's sleeping. He'll be picking fights again within a week," I told her.

She jumped up and ran over to the bed.

Flora came in. She had washed and had changed her blood-stained black gown for a green kimono affair, which gaped here and there to show a lot of orchid-colored underthings.

"Talk," she commanded, standing in front of me. "Who, what and why?"

DEMANDS $150,000

"I'm Percy Maguire," I said, as if this name, which I had just thought up, explained everything.

"That's the who," she said, as if my phoney alias explained nothing. "Now what's the what and why?"

The ape-built Pogy, standing on one side, looked me up and down. I'm lean and not-so-tall. My face doesn't scare children, but it's a more or less truthful witness to a life that hasn't been over-burdened with refinement and gentility. The evening's entertainment had decorated me with trulses and scratches, and had done things to what was left of my clothes.

"Percy!" as echoed, showing wide-spaced yellow teeth in a grin. "My Gawd, brother, your folks must of been color-blind!"

"That's the what and why," I insisted to the woman, paying no attention to the wheeze from the ape. "I'm Percy Maguire, and I want my hundred and fifty thousand dollars."

The muscles in her brows came down over her eyes.

"You've got a hundred and fifty thousand dollars, have you?"

I nodded up into her handsome brutal face.

"Yeah," I said. "That's what I came for."

"Oh, you haven't got them? You want them?"

"Listen, sister, I want my dough." I had to get tough if this play was to go over. "This swapping Oh-have-you and Yes-I-have don't get me anything but a thirst. We were in the big knockover, see? And after that, when we find the pay-off's a bust, I said to the kid I was training with, 'Never mind, Kid, we'll get our whack. Just follow Percy.' And then Bluepoint comes to me and asks me to throw in with him, and I said, 'Sure!' and me and the kid throw in with him until we all come across Red in the dump tonight."

'OUT FOR BIG BOY"

"Then I told the kid, 'These coffee-and-doughnut guns are going to rub Red out, and that won't get us anything. We'll take him away from 'em and make him steer us to where Big Flora's sitting on the jack. We ought to be good for a hundred and fifty grand apiece, now that there's damned few in on it. After we get that, if we want to bump Red off, all right. But business before pleasure, and a hundred and fifty thou is business.' So we did.

"We opened an out for the big boy when he didn't have any. The kid got mushy with the bread along the road and got knocked for a loop. That was all right with me. If she was worth a hundred and fifty grand to him—fair enough. I came on with Red. I pulled the big tramp out after he stopped the slug. By rights I ought to collect the kid's div, too—making three hundred thou for me—but give me the hundred and fifty I started out for and we'll call it even-steven."

I thought this hocus ought to stick. Of course I wasn't counting on her ever giving me any money, but if the rank and file of the mob hadn't known these people, why should these people know everybody in the mob?

Flora spoke to Pogy: "Get that damned heap away from the front door."

I felt better when he went out. She wouldn't have sent him out to move the car if she had meant to do anything to me right away.

"Got any food in the joint?" I asked, making myself at home.

She went to the head of the steps and yelled down, "Get something for us to eat."

TERROR OF FLORA

"Come on downstairs," she said. "I'd rather stay here, if I may," Nancy Regan said. Voice and eyes showed utter terror of Flora.

The big woman, saying nothing, went downstairs. I followed her to the kitchen, where the little man was working on ham and eggs at the range. The window and back door, I saw, were reinforced with heavy planking and braced with timbers nailed to the floor. The clock over the sink said 2:50 a. m.

Flora brought out a quart of liquor and poured drinks for herself and me. We sat at the table and while we waited for our food she cursed Red O'Leary and Nancy Regan, because he had got himself disabled keeping a date with her at a time when Flora needed his strength most. She cursed them individually, as a pair, and was making it a racial matter by cursing all the Irish when the little man gave us our ham and eggs.

We had finished the solids and were stirring hooch in our second cups of coffee when Pogy came back. His had news.

"There's a couple of mugs hanging around the corner that I don't much like."

"Bulls or—" Flora asked.

"Or," he said.

Flora began to curse Red and Nancy again. But she had pretty well played that line out already. She turned to me.

"What the hell did you bring them here for?" she demanded. "Leaving a mile-wide trail behind you! Why didn't you let the loony bozo lie where he got his dose?"

"I brought him here for my hundred and fifty grand. Slip it to me and I'll be on my way. You don't owe me anything else. I don't owe you anything. Give me my rhino instead of lip and I'll pull my freight."

"Like hell you will!" said Pogy. The woman looked at me under lowered brows and drank her coffee.

Oil Leak Delays Kingsford-Smith

Reunion Arranged

City and state officials and natives of Center Harbor, N. H., have been invited to attend the 19th annual reunion of residents of metropolitan Boston who vacation in Center Harbor. FASCISM DENIES RIGHTS OF MAN, SAYS KNICKERBOCKER

The three most fundamental human rights enjoyed under democracy are non-existent in Fascist Italy, H. R. Knickerbocker, noted foreign correspondent of International News Service, writes in the 11th article of his new series "Democracy Versus Dictatorship."

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Rome, Nov. 2.—[illegible] the Palazzo Venezia, headquarters of Il Duce [illegible] played "O Sole Mio" in a sidewalk cafe. It was [illegible] handclaps made the front of Mussolini's palace [illegible] as I [illegible] sun-shine.

A Roman citizen [illegible]. It tasted of [illegible].

"I approve of four-fifths of everything the big boss has done," he explained in a quiet voice. "But I value liberty above it all.

"The big boss [illegible] for Mussolini. [illegible] have picked up.

On the street [illegible] the Palazzo [illegible] seemed strong.

"What do you mean liberty?" I asked. "How about this [illegible]."

It was a new [illegible] pages long. [illegible] It bore the date [illegible] "Carlo Alberto [illegible] Dio." "Carl Albert [illegible] of God." It was [illegible] stitution, which [illegible] grace of the [illegible] popes through [illegible] year of the [illegible].

CONSTITUTION SUSPENDED

"Isn't this constitution still in effect?" I asked. "Mussolini never suspended the constitution, did he?"

"Oh no, it has not been suspended. You don't suspend your constitution either do you? Sometimes it seems to us that you too just rubber it, like here in Italy. Let's see."

He turned to the [illegible] and "rights and duties of [illegible]. That was the [illegible] of 1848.

Article 24 [illegible] whatever their rank or [illegible] equal, before the law. [illegible] Jews [illegible] citizens [illegible] political rights and [illegible] and military positions [illegible] capable to be elected [illegible].

That article of the [illegible] per the Roman citizen [illegible] "But as a matter of fact [illegible] body would get it, [illegible] It is a question of [illegible] cent and poor [illegible] have all the rights, the others none."

There are [illegible] Italians and there are [illegible] who belong to the Fascist [illegible].

The party [illegible] gets no new [illegible] except by special [illegible] permission of Mussolini. It only accepts the youths who have reached the age of 21 after having gone through the young Fascist [illegible].

FASCISTS GET CREAM

[illegible] members of the party [illegible] the cream of jobs. T[illegible] the [illegible] posts of the auxiliary Fascist organizations belong the full [illegible]. Every one of the population [illegible] with the sole [illegible] that they [illegible] the dragoon.

[illegible] would deny this. They point to Professor Alberto Beneduce, one-time Socialist who has [illegible] refused to become a Fascist but has been sent by Mussolini as representative to numerous international conferences on finance, and is today head of the most important financial organization in Italy, the Istituto Italiano [illegible] constructions Italiane. In this position he has control of virtually the entire credit machine of Italy, and has been called the economic Mussolini.

But Professor Beneduce is the exception that proves the rule. He is the Ivan Pavlov of Italy. The Bolshevik top-court wish pride to Professor Pavlov who explains in his Leningrad laboratory Communism [illegible] with a frog's leg" goes to church and denounces the red terror. The Bolsheviks honor and support Pavlov because his physiological laboratory has produced evidence they use to support their psychosis of mass action.

Beneduce and Pavlov are the sole examples of successful non-conformists in their respective fields. Non-Fascists are in fact a second class of citizen, with distinctly inferior rights and privileges.

LIBERTY DENIED

"Here for example," exclaimed the Roman, "them is the reason I say we are not free men. Look at this article 26, 'the liberty of the individual is guaranteed. No one may be arrested or brought to judgment except by due process of law.'

"And this article 27, 'the private domicile is inviolable. No search can take place except on warrant.'

"That is what our own bill of rights says. That is only the most primitive civil liberty," I commented.

"Exactly," he nodded. "But here you can be arrested without warrant, held indefinitely without knowing the charge, and if it is a political offense, brought before a special tribunal of militia officers which is really a court martial, and condemned without hope of appeal. Your house can be searched at any moment by mere police order."

Gin and Ginger Cause Trouble

(Copyright, 1934, by International News Service)

Hollywood, Nov. 2.—Thought of Ginger Rogers getting married was too much for an unidentified Los Angeles youth. Heartbroken and full of gin, he made a determined attempt last Wednesday night to storm the actress' hilltop home.

The newspapers were hardly out announcing the red-headed star's engagement to Lew Ayres, when Ginger and her mother were startled to hear a terrific pounding on their front door.

Frightened, for there were only women in the house, Mrs. Lela Rogers put in a call to the police.

When the star's mother saw the youth of the supposed burglar, and found out why he was there she put in a plea with the officers.

So, instead of being in jail, a love-sick Los Angeles boy was merely nursing a headache.

JAPS BACK OIL MONOPOLY

By International News Service

Tokyo, Nov. 2.—Manchukuo control of the industries within her own borders is a matter for Manchukuo's concern and hers alone, Japan has informed the United States and Great Britain in reply to the second protest from these countries on the proposed Manchukuan oil monopoly, it became known today.

Japan was understood to have emphasized in her reply to British and American governments that Japan herself, more than any other country, is anxious to safeguard the "open door" policy and encourage equal opportunity in Manchukuo.

Great Britain and the United States were reminded, however, that the industries, control contemplated in Manchukuo, affecting not only the oil but other industries as well, is an "internal affair" subject to the jurisdiction of only Manchukuo herself.

Jap Treaty Violation Charged in Britain

By Associated Press.

London, Nov. 2.—Government quarters said today that Great Britain regards the Manchukuan government's reported intention to put into immediate effect some of the provisions of its new oil monopoly laws as violations of Manchukuo's promise to observe treaties and of Japan's part in the nine-power treaty.

Officials appeared to be indignant over the reported intention, but it was stated that it was too soon as yet to say what action the British government may take.

ROYAL ROMANCE WOES GROW

By Universal Service

Paris, Nov. 2.—Former King Alfonso's marriage 28 years ago to Princess Victoria will end in a formal separation agreement, and that of royalist son the ex-Prince of the Asturias to a Cuban commoner will be laid before the Vatican [illegible] an annulment appeal, Spaniards [illegible] the latest developments in the former royal Spanish family's marital difficulties according to a close relative of the ex-king.

Red the lovely, dark Ignacia Sampedro for whom Alfonso's heir renounced his royal rights and defied his father was emphatic in stating that their separation was not of her making.

Universal Service was informed that King George of England has sent former Queen Victoria of Spain to his lawyer to work out a definite separation agreement. King George and the ex-queen are both grandchildren of Queen Victoria of England.

Hope Abandoned for Webster Pair

Fryeburg, Me., Nov. 2.—Search for the missing Robert S. Webster and his bride of a year was still going on along the Allagash trail here, but it was a hopeless hunt in that no one expected to find the couple alive.

Chief Fire Warden Albert Thirdeau, located at Tramway, Fire Warden Morris Bartlett at Umsaskis Lake 20 miles away and Fish and Game Supervisor Levi Dow at Fort Kent, prepared in the search, were all convinced that the Websters were dead.

200 'Hungry' Men March on Albany

Albany, Nov. 2 (AP)—Two hundred "hunger marchers" prepared to move today on the State Capitol to present their demands for winter relief. Answering the request of Governor Lehman, Mayor Bert Boyd Thacher said the "marchers" would be permitted to go to the Capitol if they were orderly.

Ely and Mansfield Invited to Legion Installation

Governor Joseph B. Ely and Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield are among the guests invited to attend a joint installation of Navy Post 297, American Legion and its Auxiliary tomorrow evening in the Ritz-Plaza ballroom, 218 Huntington avenue.

Alvin B. Grissman will be installed as commander and Harriet F. Grissman as president of the post and auxiliary respectively. Suites under Leo F. Murphy, senior vice commander, Suffolk County Council, and Eleanor Whelton, Suffolk County president, will officiate at the colorful ceremonies.

Dancing and entertainment will follow the business of the evening. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Next Thursday evening, members of the Roxbury Neighborhood House will give a repeat performance of the three-act play "Wappin' Wharf," a pirate comedy written by Charles Brooks. Miss Evelyn Cunningham is coach of the cast. The drama will be produced in the house auditorium at 858 Albany street, Boston.

Meeting tonight of members of John Drum Camp, United Veterans of the Spanish War, at their quarters in the Municipal Building, Dorchester. Charles Strauss is chairman for the evening.

Members of All Dorchester Post 154, American Legion, will sponsor an Armistice Day memorial services on Sunday morning, November 11, at St. Anne's Church, Neponset. On Tuesday evening, November 27, the post will conduct a harvest party and turkey night.

* * *

"Tack" Hardwick, famous All-American football hero, will be toastmaster on Tuesday at the weekly luncheon of the Advertising Club of Boston to be held in the Georgian room of the Hotel Statler. The luncheon will be designated as Football Day and invitations have been sent to coaches from all of the colleges in and about Boston to attend the gathering.

A feature of the affair will be a discussion of the old-type game and the new-type game by two of the best known exponents of the popular sporting classic.

CIVIL WAR SEEN OVER SINCLAIR

By International News Service

Los Angeles, Nov. 2—The greatest mobilization of peace officers in the history of California will guard against disorders at the polls Tuesday when the voters decide whether Upton Sinclair, epic Democratic governor Frank Merriam Republican or Raymond L. Haight, Progressive-Commonwealther, will serve as governor for the next four years.

One or more police officers or state guardsmen will be at each of the 3574 polling places in Los Angeles County, where 1,305,327 of the state's 3,140,214 voters are concentrated.

Talk of bloodshed came directly into the campaign here today when Haight in an impassioned radio address declared:

"With no desire to be either startling or sensational, I solemnly believe the election of either Merriam or Sinclair will bring a flow of blood in California and the intervention of federal troops."

This Ear— —That Air

By N. F. T.

It must be great fun for the Byrd Expedition members to make ready for their half hour broadcast every week, considering their otherwise isolated life.

Not that the average Antarctic airing comes through clearly enough to be consistently enjoyed on this end of the wireless, because as a general rule it doesn't.

Many a listener makes known a curiosity at this desk, inquiring what approximate percentage of the loudspeaker patrons actually wait for and relish the Byrd program, as relayed out of the icy wastes. There isn't any way for our tonsil in the vineyard of type here to venture even so much as a flimsy guess on that score. However our way the whole effort is put in demand a little bit.

"N. F. T."

Occasionally, it does get a hearing by virtue of being the first up to what was holding forth before hand. In the light of all the distance through which it comes, a certain amount of appreciation registers, since 10,000 miles is a long way by any measurement stretch of the imagination. Otherwise it's just another network taunt. Good enough, perhaps, if you are an enthusiast about expeditions.

FLEETING FLASHES

Sheer unquisitiveness has directed these feet in and out of local studios in an effort to catch a glimpse, if possible, of Mr. Curley and Mr. Bacon passing one another in the corridors. No success yet, but the wonderment as to what sort of greeting might be exchanged is still potent enough to keep us brushing spirit high. Incidentally, both candidates are so constantly on the go that one never hears the other, but attends to the matter of having campaign forces "cover" the opposition ozone utterances carefully.

Allston Woman Wins $10 for Letter on Men

Mrs. Gladys C. Sproule of 6 Arden street, Allston, is the winner of the "What Every Woman Know's About Men" contest sponsored by the Boston Evening American and as a result received the first prize of $10.

Ray Carrol of 325 Windsor street, Cambridge, and Alice M. Davies of 4 South Maple avenue, Bradford followed with second and third prizes of $5 each, and Mrs. Laura Samson of 8 Woodville street, Everett and Alice B. Winslow of 155 Clyde street, Brookline, are $2.50 richer by sending in their entries.

The contest was held in connection with the showing of the Helen Hayes picture, "What Every Woman Knows," which opens at Loew's Orpheum today. Readers of the American were asked to give their opinions about men, and the large number of replies demonstrated that the women had been waiting for this opportunity for some time. Many thanked the American for sponsoring the contest, and then proceeded to tell in no uncertain manner just what is wrong with the boy friends. However, many were very complimentary.

The viewpoint of the writer did not enter into the judging, only the logic of the opinions expressed. Each letter was carefully read by the judges, and the final winners chosen only after weighing the respective merits of the individual entries.

The following 25 winners will be mailed two courtesy tickets to Loew's State theater to see the lavish musical production, "The Merry Widow," co-starring Maurice Chevalier and Jeanette MacDonald.

Dorothy L. Schulze, 822 Fifth street, South Boston; Estelle Knowles, 39 California avenue, West Quincy; Peggy Burke, 21 Dodge street, Gloucester; Mrs. Donelan, 429 Walnut avenue, Roxbury; Betty Donegan, 77 D street, South Boston; Mrs. J. COWBOYS MINCE INTO TOWN ON HIGH HEELS

Broad shouldered, slim hipped, clear eyed men with bronzed faces and the stamp of the great out-of-doors indelibly marked all over them. Vigorous looking men.

But something is lacking. The... ought to stride through the crowds of city dwellers like college football backs through a grammar school playground. But they don't—they mince.

Oh, sure—the Rodeo is in town.

A big section of the Boston pop place knows it already for the first performance of Colonel W. T. Johnson's cowboys and cowgirls at the Boston Garden drew the biggest crowd of spectators such events on has ever brought forth here.

They roared with delight when the stiff-legged calves was let fall down to be roped.

They screamed in fearful glee when bucking broncbos rose of their wavy hind legs and threw their riders.

They strained and strained with the contestants when it started. I steers broke their necks and tried not to roll over.

From the time the Rodeo kings paraded around the arena to the last hat-waving cowboy lined for the paddock with a wh. Yippeeee!" they made every moment known to a lively crowd that loved it was getting its money's worth.

EXPECT 'BREAK' IN FIRE DEATHS

By Associated Press

Danielson, Conn., Nov. 2—An important "break" in the Trenor Rice case was expected today by Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, in charge of the Danielson state police barracks.

Rice is in the Windham county jail, where he is being held in connection with a fire at Canterbury Sunday night in which his divorced wife, Mrs. Edna Rice, and a 3-year-old daughter, Marion, perished.

Alibis offered by Rice to the state police as to his whereabouts the night of the fire have complicated, police said. In both statements, Rice said he was in a roaming house in White Plains, N. Y., but checkups have disclosed, state police assert, that the main is only "partially right."

Search for several diamonds missing from a strong box in which Rice's divorced wife kept her valuables was continued. Found badly battered a short distance from the fire, some of its contents are missing.

Rice is occupying a cell where in 1929 he was confined for a short time on a charge of slaying County Detective William Jackson. This charge later was dismissed.

American Tragedy Pleas Wednesday

Wilkesbarre, Pa. Nov. 2 (UP)—Arguments for a new trial for Robert Allan Edwards, convicted "American tragedy" slayer of Freda McKechnie, his sweetheart will be heard Wednesday, Judge W. A. Valentine announced here. Punishment was to be death in the electric chair.

Addition as evidence of 171 letters written by Edwards to Miss Margaret Crain of East Aurora N. Y., the "other girl" in the case will form the basis of the argument by Counsel Mervin...

PAULINE NESBIT PAUL OWEN MARY KING

Not all the cow punchers at the Rodeo now showing at the Boston Garden are leather-necked old timers. Here are a couple of beauteous cowgirls and a young lad just arrived from the plains to make his name in the big cities. The girls, Pauline Nesbit and Mary King, can keep their seat on the liveliest steed, while Paul Owen shows promise of becoming the show's most expert bull-dogger before long.

Fish Price Increase Features Week-End Food Market

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast over Station WAAB

Fish prices will be found to be a few cents higher per pound this week, both because of the strike at the pier among the cutters and the fishermen and the weather off the banks has been very poor for fishing. At the present time there are several boats there waiting for conditions to clear. The boys-swife is not apt to think of all the reasons behind a rise or drop of a few cents, but there generally is a human story in back of it.

Haddock and cod are selling at 15 cents and halibut at 35 cents and 40 cents a pound. Western salmon at 25 cents and smelts are 35 cents and 40 cents just now. Mackerel is selling at the higher price of 1 cent per pound and 10 cents from the shores of Maine. 50 cents a lb for the live. Clams are 40 cents a quart in a week end and quite a few 70 cents and 80 cents a quart depending upon the area. They have not been so low in price for some years and a quart of clams will serve a large number of persons when made into a delicious chowder. Fried clams are a treat as a supper dish. A pint would be enough for the ordinary family.

VEGETABLES PLENTIFUL

Lettuce is seasonable at this time at 25c a pound and stuffed bake at 35c. Heads of fresh will want to take advantage of these while they are on the market.

One of the market men who has seen the market conditions over a period of many years tells me that fruits and vegetables have never been as plentiful and as good, as they are at the present time.

Among our own native vegetables are the ones which we expect at this time—cabbage, cauliflower, pumpkin, squash, eggplant, sweet potatoes, broccoli, etc. The native lettuce is 10c a head and the hot house is 5c. All the necessary salad ingredients are available—fresh, green cucumbers and large, meaty radishes. These are ingredients to have on hand in the refrigerator to be made up into salads quickly. Sorrel is on the markets, and looks like spinach but has quite a bitter flavor and is generally used in sauces. Mustard greens, which also resemble the leafy vegetables, has a delicate flavor of mustard and is cooked and served like spinach. Mushrooms are quite inexpensive at 30c to 40c a pound. We can begin to add them to our every day meals now that they are lower in price.

ORANGES ARE HIGH

Oranges are expensive in price 60c and 70c a dozen because it is between seasons on the California oranges. The Florida oranges that are coming into the market at the present time are rather sour and flavorless, so try to substitute some of the other fruits which are plentiful. Grapefruits are good and will be coming in plentiful from now on. They are at the height of their season about two months from now. The seedless variety are selling from $1 to $1.50 a dozen.

Make the most of the apple season while it is here. Beautiful large red Melatosh apples are 50c a dozen. Equally as good for cooking and eating purposes are the Rome beauties, a very hard apple, having the red and yellow colorings. These sell at 50c a dozen, and are used by hotels and restaurants for baking. The Delicious, is strictly for eating. It is considered very good, but a more delicate apple than the other two, in both flavor and texture.

Cranberries, which no one is without at this time year particularly, not only for cranberry sauce but for the many delightful desserts that can be made from them, are 15c a quart. There are many varieties of grapes. There are some special imported Malaga grapes from Spain, selling at 25c a pound. These have not been brought into this country for 12 years until this year. They are large green grapes, sweet and delicate in flavor. Concords are fine, just now, so if you haven't already made your stock of jams and jellies, be sure to do so as it is getting near the end of the season. These are 25c a box. Tokay, Ribier, and the Thomson seedless, which are the small green grapes so nice to combine with salads, are at 20c a pound. We saw some unusually large, fine pineapples at 75c each. Also the DeComice pears, the hard pears which are excellent for eating and to use in salads or desserts, or for baking, 60c to 75c a dozen. These will be available all through the winter.

VERMONT TURKEYS

Beautiful, full-meated native turkeys from Vermont are specially priced this week end at 40c at one of the markets we visited. These range from 14 to 16 lbs. Cape turkeys are 45c a lb. There are many good purchases in the meat line. Roast pork sells at 22c a lb.

Jordan's Workers Give Supper-Dance

The second annual supper dance of Jordan Marsh Company Fellow Workers' organization attracted a throng of 350 at Hotel Statler last night. Dancing was interspersed with entertainment in which members shared applause with professionals from the theaters. Miss Doris Gravelle, a Jordan's fellow worker, won plaudits for her songs. The executive staff of the store was represented by E. J. Prendergast and Harry McCann, divisional merchandise managers. Ray Babb and Harry Vail were in charge of entertainment. Virginia Taylor and Mary Tew headed the publicity committee and F. W. Walters was chairman of the ticket committee.

Rites Tomorrow for Fr. Dwyer

Funeral services for the Rev. William J. Dwyer, 71, of St. Bernard's Church, West Newton, who died Tuesday following a period of illness, will be held at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

Although he had not been in good health for the last three years, he continued as pastor of St. Bernard's until a month ago. The solemn requiem mass will be celebrated by the Rev. Msgr. John Sullivan of All Saints Church, Roxbury, with the Rev. William J. Barry of Our Lady of the Assumption Church, East Dedham, as deacon and the Rev. Joseph Quinn of St. Teresa's Church, Everett, as subdeacon.

Owlish Angle to Politics

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

You've got to look for your information in brackets these days.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania says that Keystone State business men got rebates from Reconstruction Finance and Chairman Jones of Texas denies it.

Now we will decode this charge and rub a little tonic on a bald statement.

Senator Reed (Republican) of Pennsylvania (in bad shape) says local business men (not Republicans of course) got rebates (graft) from Reconstruction Finance (non-partisan) and Chairman Jones (Democrat) of Texas (look at records and see what the delegation did at Chicago convention) denies it.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON, FRIDAY NOVEMBER 2 1928

This Is Life

by ROBERT E. ROGERS

Everybody has had the experience of finding that once his curiosity is roused on a certain matter, he is likely to run across it like a bolt from the blue—something that exactly fits into his thoughts. Quite unlike that "total depravity of inanimate objects" of which Gail Hamilton once wrote, this is the "total unexpectedness of literary aids."

For instance, I was being reminded by a subway poster that Princeton is going to play Harvard this Saturday after a lapse of eight years in athletic relations. As I go to a football game on an average of one game in two years—that being when the Yale game is in Cambridge—and that as a matter of semi-religious ritual rather than of any active interest in or knowledge of football. I had almost forgotten that we no longer played Princeton. I racked my brain to remember what happened. The one word seemed to be signet rings but in what connection I could not exactly remember.

So I gave it up with a sigh and turned to the current Scribner's which had just arrived, and there—believe it or not!—was an article by a Mr. Lawrence Perry—a Joseph unknown to this Pharaoh, but apparently a sports writer—who told me not only about the Harvard-Princeton break, but, for good measure, the Army-Navy break as well.

The Army-Navy break was the result of a clear-cut difference of opinion on principle. It was the question of the three-year eligibility rule. The Army considered itself entitled to play for three years a college graduate who had already played three years at good old Siwash. The Navy did not. Consequently the Army frequently beat the Navy. Hence the break in relations, except sporadically, for charity purposes. Hence the belated get-together.

Tiger Belittled

But the Harvard-Princeton break puzzles me. Mr. Perry, who seems to have inside information, also seems to have very little of the inside information that means anything. The story is that there is no story, that the stories which attempted to explain the break were false. The occasion, according to Mr. Perry, was William Bingham's letter to Princeton putting Princeton on the "occasional" list, thus demoting it, so far as Harvard was concerned, from its equal position with Yale at the end of the schedule in the annual series of the Big Three. Princeton broke relations.

But behind that, says Mr. Perry, was simply a record of bad blood Princeton had got on Harvard's nerves and vice-versa. There were charges and countercharges of professionalism and—worse—of dirty football. Harvard thought Princeton players were dirty and brutal. Princeton thought Harvard was "supercilious," apparently a new 12 word for the old misunderstood "indifference."

The college newspapers, particularly the Lampoon, then in the depths of its "mucker pose," poured oil on the flames. An extraordinary tactless young man named Hubbard wrote a magazine article about brutalities. I suspect that there is where my faint memory of signet rings comes in.

What Mr. Perry has to offer toward elucidating this situation after eight years is merely this: That Harvard University took no steps to stop the barrage of undergraduate attack on Princeton and thus allowed Princeton to be maligned to the world without official opportunity for defense; that Robert H. Fisher, Harvard coach, told Perry that to the best of his belief the charges against Princeton were not true and that to his knowledge he had never, as coach, received complaints from his players; and that he preferred not to be quoted.

Barbed Lampoon

In the other words, the high command at Harvard, which disbelieved in the charges, allowed the rowdyish and irresponsible Lampoon to speak for Harvard in a matter involving the integrity and sportsmanship of Princeton in football matters. And the irony of it all is, adds Perry, that the breach was repaired, if not healed, with no mention of the cause of the trouble years ago.

As I say, I know nothing at all about football. I am worse than ignorant. But it amused me to find this article as an answer to prayer.

GEE! BED FEELS GOOD

Lampoon Cries 'Judas' Yale Editors Shake

War Declared

ELIS BLAMED FOR MISSING PAPERS

Flying squadrons of Harvard and Princeton students were converging on New Haven today with the avowed purpose of either recovering the four to eight thousand stolen copies of the joint Lampoon-Tiger issue for Saturday, or—

The alternative was disclosed in a telegram dispatched from Princeton to "Judas," care of the Yale Record. It said:

"Or recover enough Record property to compensate."

Dispatches from New Haven indicated that Thomas K. Krug chairman of the Record, was under suspicion. The Yale Daily News, rival of the Record, openly charged the theft to him in its issue today.

Krug was questioned at length by a delegation of Harvard and Princeton alumni, who went over to New Haven from New York, but he refused to confess.

On learning of the flying squadrons, Krug asked Yale campus police for a guard, not only for the Record offices, but for himself personally. He is quoted as saying:

"I have received a number of telephoned threats. I fear my life and limb, or both, are jeopardized."

Krug scoffed at reports from Cambridge that the theft of the Lampoon-Tiger magazine was in reprisal for the larceny of Handsome Dan, the Yale bulldog mascot, last year. He said:

Resents Attitude

"We wouldn't stoop to the tactics of the Harvards. Hitherto the proud name of the Yale Record and its staff has been above suspicion. I resent the attitude of Princeton and Harvard editors, particularly the Harvard editors."

It was hinted in Cambridge that a band of pacifists organized secretly to oppress the issue and that Yale had nothing to do with the theft.

It was learned that the stolen issue was dedicated as "an insult to end all insults." The "insult" referred to the issue of Lampoon that was a factor in causing a break in athletic relations between Harvard and Princeton in 1926.

The pacifists, it was said, feared that more insults would only insult Princeton more and might even end the era of good feeling just begun by renewal of the Harvard-Princeton football rivalry tomorrow.

GIRL LOST ALL NIGHT

Child, Ill, Found, Tells of Man

After a night of frantic search by police and volunteers, 7-year-old Doris L. Greenhill of Lafayette park, Roxbury, was found a few minutes before 7 a. m. today.

Mystery surrounded the night that the child was missing. She was dirty, sleepy and hungry. She was incoherent, unable to explain where she had been.

Only one phrase could questioners get from the child

"I lost my way home and went to sleep in a house in Blue Hill avenue. A man brought me in there."

Doris was first reported missing when she did not return from sessions of the Sarah J. Blake school in Perkins street, Roxbury, yesterday afternoon.

When the little girl did not come back from classes after the 3 40 p. m. dismissal time, Mrs. Greenhill became worried. After a few hours she called authorities for help.

All night police from the Dudley street station searched houses and cellars in the vicinity. They checked hospitals to see if any child were reported injured and unidentified.

Patrolman John J. Coughlin of Dudley street station, driving to the station a stolen car he had found abandoned in Blue Hill avenue, saw the child in Julian street. At the avenue, and recognized the description. On the way to the station, the girl suddenly said:

"You went by the house that I stayed at."

The car was taken over the course again, but failed to point out any house in Blue Hill avenue.

Doris is the daughter of Ernest Greenhill and the stepdaughter of his wife. Her mother died several years ago. Her father, who worked in Bridgeport, Ct., as a mechanic, remarried a few months ago.

Salad Days

When her day's work on the lot is done, Fay Wray, lovely screen heroine, likes nothing better than to putter around in what she calls her "salad garden." In a 15 by 15 foot enclosure the star grows every plant adaptable to California soil. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

JUST AS EASY AS FINDING AN IDEAL HUSBAND

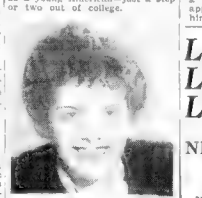
"Is he my type? Can he make me happy? Should I marry him?"

Those questions have caused girls many sleepless nights and headaches. And yet if they were made to ask themselves, they would not have to worry about them at all. They would find that their secretaries to sort the marriage proposals out of the morning mail and then decide from what type of man most of them came.

Getting the formula for your ideal husband? It's just as easy as falling off a log for a flicker flash. For instance:

GINGER ROGERS

Ginger Rogers who has made her choice; tops the stars when it comes to marriage mail. And her mail dictates that her male should be a young American—just a step or two out of college.



KATHARINE HEPBURN

Then there's Katharine Hepburn —who has a very satisfactory husband, thank you. Her offers come from the intelligentsia, according to reports. By the way, who said the high brows were too aloof to propose by mail to a lady to whom they had never been introduced?

THELMA TODD

Another screen sensation is Thelma Todd, former Lawrence school marm. She too, gets her mail, but most of it comes from foreigners—the Latin type. Proves that opposites do attract, her luscious brunette, their dashing swarthiness.

HEIRESS Prefers Jail to Paying Balm

Rutland, Vt., Nov. 2—Miss Bertha Moore, niece of the late Governor William W. Stickney and heiress to her fortune declared today that she would stay in the Riverside Reformatory and fight rather than pay a $500 assignation of fiscal affairs.

The winner of the suit against Miss Moore is Mrs. Carrie Gilman who said that her husband Albert, a cemetery sexton, was lured away from his home and baby by the heiress.

But the loser in the alienations of affections suit said that she was satisfied to stay in jail even if it has to be until doomsday if she can be assured that she can't pay the award out of the income from her uncle's trust fund.

TRAGEDY Note Tells Wife of Collapse

Mrs. George M. Lockwood of Chestnut street Lynn, found a note in her husband's parked car when she walked to the Lynn depot to meet him on his way home from Boston.

The note was from police, urgently requesting her to go to the Lynn Hospital. Arriving at the hospital she was told that her husband had collapsed on the train en route from Boston and had been taken to the Lynn Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Dog Knows Way Around; Hunts for Home Himself

3 Years Old, But Wise

He's only three, but how he knows his way around. All of which concerns a smart dog of Beagle breed, who wandered all by himself into the building that is home to a society to give homeless dogs a home. He picked out the Animal Rescue League at 51 Carver street. There's no absolute proof but no one can dispute the belief that the young hound waited outside the door of the League until the door was opened. He was welcomed and today had a nice cage to rest in until his real owner—or a new owner—appears to take him away.

Locksmith Laughs at Love Plot

NEWLYWED PAIR HANDCUFFED TOGETHER

Vineyard Haven, Nov. 2—It was a good thing that, with all the elaborate preparations to prevent a kidnaping prank, the newlywed Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Lawton didn't forget where they left the key to the handcuffs that bound them together.

For they hadn't found their key, the Lawtons might have been forced to go all the way to Glendale, Calif., handcuffed. As it was, they were able to doff the steel bracelets and yet give the laugh to friends who planned to separate them.

The bridegroom was the one who unearthed the kidnaping conspiracy. He accidentally overheard the plotters' plans. So he went to state police headquarters and borrowed the handcuffs. When he and his bride got aboard ship for the mainland, they freed themselves.

WAR DEBT HELP OFFERED SCOT WORRIED

By Universal Service

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 2 - The war debt owed the United States by Great Britain was a source of worry to James Bertram, a Scotchman who had his own ideas about promises to pay.

When his will was filed it was learned that Bertram who was a trustee and secretary of the Carnegie Institute, provided that his estate eventually go to the chancellor of the exchequer of Great Britain to be applied to that nation's debt to the United States—in the event that his 26-year-old daughter does not have children.

No estimate of the estate was made, but the suggested figure of $1,000,000 was termed "exorbitant" by the widow, Mrs. Janet T. Ewing.

All real and personal property is left to the widow, and at her death the income of the residuary goes to the daughter Miss Jean Ewing Bertram. If she dies childless, the principal amount goes to the British treasury for the purpose stated.

PUNCH DEFEATS BEAR

Hunter Saves Pet 'Coon Dog

Pittsfield, Nov. 2—The best way to conquer a wild bear is to punch it in the jaw, if the experience of Vengar O'Brien of Adams is any criterion.

O'Brien and a companion, William Ruprecht were hunting for coons in the valley near Searsburg, Mountain, Vt. They heard the dogs baying beneath a tree and the hunting party had flushed a coon, up to them.

There, in the crotch of a low tree shown by O'Brien's flashlight, sat a 300-pound bear.

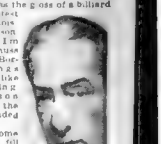
O'Brien fired a load of buckshot at the beast, which merely served to enrage it. It slid quietly down, sent one hound sprawling with its heavy paw, and started to crush the other in its hug.

The dog in the bear's secret in crush was O'Brien's pet 'coon dog, and he couldn't let that go on.

He rushed in and fired a revolver, but the cartridge misfired. So O'Brien used his fists.

One punch rendered the dog and sent the bear back to the tree. Another buckshot charge brought it down, and the revolver which worked, this time, finished the job.

O. O. McIntyre NEW YORK DAY BY DAY



O. O. McIntyre

New York, Nov. 2—Thoughts while at Long Conde Hotel's sartorial ward has the gloss of a billiard ball. Add street sweeping idols Jas. Robertson Sloane day. I'm going to muse on little Bobby Jones' hands and run like everything. John Mason Brown is the only red-headed critic.

O for some genius to fill Irving Herbert's shoes. Hassard Short is, incidentally, almost always wearing the Ziegfeld mantle. With all the snuff used in New York, I never see anyone use it. Harold Ross and his chic French bride, Edwin C. Hill suggests the hero of a Robert W. Chambers story.

Bob Garland and H. L. Mencken look alike from the back. And they are both from Baltimore. Clara Bell Walsh's Scottie is stone blind but the freakiest pooch on the avenue. Whatever became of Frederic and Fanny Hatton? Pierre's might be called a memorial shaft to a broken heart.

Nobody in my set can play a stage lady so standly as Ruth Weston. Rex O'Malley is a ringer for Valentine Williams. I thought one of the Vanderbilts was someone else and spoke familiarly. And do I feel well-bred! What a striking appearance Dorothy Thompson makes in the news reels.

Doesn't seem cricket to call the austere Bernard Baruch "Barney." Molly Picon sounds like inducing a step running down stairs. Mesmore Kendall always looks as though he was just chased out of Bond street. And Peter Arno, then who—that who is to brighten F. P. A.'s day—there is no dresser.

Shubert's Grief

Out of town newspaper stands at Bryant Park and Times square are the lamenting grounds of clever begging subtleties. The moochers stand off to one side and with cagey-eyed precision spot the paper a patron selects. Then after a selection from say Toledo he follows for a half block, asks for alms and remarks he is trying to get back to Toledo. It usually surges a kindred feeling that finishes out a coin.

LEE SHUBERT

The Rockefeller Center musical show offers something new in costuming. The first act has a military setting in Verona and the orchestra is arrayed in military attire. The second act is in a grand Viennese ballroom and they change to white uniforms.

Edgar Allan Woolf, transferred in the Hollywood scene, was once the most prolific writer of vaudeville sketches in the land. In variety's heyday there was scarcely a bill that did not include one of his skits. His royalties at one time were supposed $100,000 yearly. He was also noted as a toastmaster and master of ceremonies with a keen and mordant wit. All of which is reminiscent that there are scarcely any vaudeville playwrights any more. Once there were several dozen.

Lee Shubert continues the Rialto's most self-effacing entrepreneur. A sedate first nighter, he goes to the suspicious first nights, sometimes with Harry Kaufman or Thomas Meighan. He is often alone, and later to a ringside supper club table in the same solitude. In his theater seat he rarely looks right or left or changes expression. There are those who say he has never been able entirely to erase from memory the tragic passing of his youngest brother, Sam S. Shubert, killed in a railroad catastrophe. Whatever the reason, he has never given the impression of haunting melancholy. Incidentally, this season has been conspicuous for the recovery of the shattered Shubert fortune. They are sponsoring one of the most successful musical hits, along with several other money makers.

Like Parents

The posterity hope of the Shuberts is now centered on J. J.'s son John, a youth with surprising flair for the theater. His personability is something of a phenomenon, for rarely do sons of producers follow footsteps of their fathers.

Word, too, comes from the cinema capital that Petrina, the screi-toped daughter of Ziegfeld and Billie Burke, is exhibiting marked talent for the stage, not as actress, but as one with a keen eye for costuming, lighting and scenic effects. In other words, her Dad's metier—production.

CHAPTER 152

I HEARD AN incredulous little gasp from Mary as I said that. If it were not for the people who would be so grieved by the elopement, I would ring the minister's door bell myself.

"Oh, then you do understand," she said. And suddenly the tenseness was gone from her face and body, and she put out groping hands to me. I took her into my arms and it set about her bent head to her and to Noel.

"Of course I understand," I said. "That awful [illegible] tortured you both until you were not responsible for what you were doing or doing."

"I know one thing I'm sure," Noel said with grim emphasis. "I'm not going to make the mistake of walk to her wedding a year with that beast trailing along behind of her. I don't care what her father does. I've stood all I'm going to."

PLOT IS REVEALED

"I don't blame you one bit," I said warmly "and I'm with you to the last drop of my blood all the rest of the evening. But your horses a-pawing and I wish Judy and you would [illegible]."

"But Avis Arlen—" Mary began to be in the wedding party," I said quietly.

"You mean you'll be a bridesmaid Mary," Noel added. "But what will my father say—and we were with the ceremony."

I countered his [illegible] with another.

"Will both of you promise to keep quiet until I [illegible] talking?" I asked.

"Of course" they answered as one, and I drew a long breath. Could I, in Dicky's parlance, "put it over?" I was very skeptical of my own powers as I began to talk slowly and in simple words.

"To begin with, Noel," I said, "you succeeded tonight in doing something which I did not think could be done. You completely cowed and routed Avis Arlen. She is so humiliated and so frightened that she is almost in a state of collapse. Her only thought is that knowledge of the scene tonight be kept from the knowledge of the people in the house, especially the youngsters."

AVIS' BARGAIN

I paused, and Mary, forgetting her promise to keep silent, muttered:

"You can be shouting that neither Noel nor I will broadcast."

"I know that," I said, "and the knowledge helped me to make a bargain with Avis. She is as anxious to keep out of the bridal party as you are to have her absent from it, and she understands that if she tells your former Noel the real reason of her absence, I will tell [illegible] to the house what really happened in the study."

Wow!" Dicky interjected, and I remembered that he had not yet been [illegible] in my study. "What a great blackmailer my friend turns out to be! But it's a little one-sided [illegible] and go on with it."

"I intended to," I said somewhat turbidly. "From [illegible] Avis will never be [illegible] from either Mr. or Mrs. [illegible] word or [illegible] excuse [illegible] Dicky, [illegible] the bride away."

"I would have her [illegible] the house altogether," [illegible] and your father [illegible] ing down, and I won't [illegible] through the affair with [illegible] dial or even excitement. [illegible] you my word [illegible] only will she be [illegible] wedding [illegible] shall not appear [illegible] or come anywhere [illegible] shall make that stipulation [illegible] of my blessing. [illegible] be as rigidly kept [illegible] as if she had the [illegible] der those circumstances, don't you think you could [illegible] this step? For my sake, for children! Really, it means more to me than you can [illegible]."

There was no affectation in my broken voice as I finished, and Mary lifted her head from my shoulder and then hugged me tightly as she exclaimed:

"Just so I don't have to see or talk to that ape, I'd [illegible] back. What do you say, Noel."

A VICTORY

"If there wasn't anything at stake except my [illegible] Noel said [illegible], I'd rather go on now. But I agree with you that it can't be [illegible] go back. But will you tell me how she's going to explain [illegible] to my father? He's quick to suspect something, has no shrewd [illegible]."

"I don't believe he'll suspect this alibi, if [illegible] knows Avis," I said, and then [illegible] of her plan to [illegible] Veritzen that she could [illegible] it to wear the bridesmaid [illegible] in the color planned for her and so stayed out of the wedding procession.

"I hope she makes it emphatic enough," Noel said, as he helped Mary down, so that they might drive back in his car, for he's likely to hold up the wedding for an investigation."

Pea Sauce for Fish

Make a tomato sauce of two tablespoons butter, two and one-half tablespoons flour and one and one-half cup tomato juice. Add one and one-half cups fresh cooked peas. Cut one small onion in pieces, saute in one tablespoon butter and add. Season to taste and pour over fish. Serves six.

Silly Reasons Sway Women Too Often

By Sheilah Graham

"THERE ARE ways and WAYS of choosing a husband—some are good some are bad, some are indifferent. That chosen by Opera Singer Countess Eugenie Zichy is bad. So bad that it smells of a publicity stunt.

The red-headed namesake of the Napoleonic Empress on her arrival in this country was confronted—at her own request—by two strangers not even handsome, one of whom was to occupy the doubtfully exalted position of her new husband.

The countess joined her every need round three times, grabbed the nearest gentleman and popped. Wrap to one up. MYOPIA HUNTER AND HOUND TRAILS ATTRACT SOCIAL LEADERS

MUCH LIKE THE scenes in old English hunting prints, was the Myopia hunter and hound trials at Hamilton where society gathered to thrill and cheer at the performances of the entries as they covered the picturesque course. Visitors from Providence were Miss Rosemarie Lylton, Mrs. Meredith Jones and Mrs. Russell Knowles who took advantage of the back of their car as a superior vantage point, and the lovely Miss Phyllis Gerry of Providence who represented the Jacobs Hill hunt team with her mount, Rock Salt. She is the daughter of Louis C. Gerry, president of the hunt, whose colors she wore. Miss Dorothy Preston, daughter of Mrs. Harold G. Cutler of Commonwealth avenue and the North Shore, shielded herself from the blustering winds with her gray fur coat and held fast to her companionable German Shepherd dog, Barron. Needle Work Is Displayed

IN SPITE OF THE RAIN yesterday the opening of the fifth annual needle work exhibition at the Women's Educational and Industrial Union attracted a good many people. To all those who are interested in fine needle-work this year's exhibition has become an event of real importance.

The collection of chairs with seats and backs worked in needlepoint is outstanding one of the finest entires being a chair lent by Mrs. Robert Amory which has a ship medallion designed by her father worked into the back Mrs. Ernest Dane has lent a chair which is done in a French millefleurs design. Most of the designs have been adapted from old French and English pieces. Mrs. John Barto, has lent one of a set of chairs, the seats of which are patterned after an old Aubusson rug and are worked to stimulate the texture of the weaving.

The exhibit also includes many lovely benches, bags, cushions and samplers. During the afternoon weaving was demonstrated by Mas Lydia Streeker of the School of Tapestry Weaving. The exhibit will continue through today and tomorrow from 10:30 until 4:30. The public is cordially invited to attend and there is no admission fee.

B. U. to Go Big-Time To Hire Red Sox Park Next Fooball Season

By AUSTEN LAKE

AFTER A LONG SPELL OF brain-trust experiment, Boston University underwent a complete change in football government this season.

The doctrines of "player control" and similar athletic communism were scrapped, and a stocky, black-haired career-coach named Pat Manley, who is pretty smart in the head, was imported from the Middle-West and installed as dictator.

Austen Lake

This was a flip-flop in policy, because previously B. U. had been in the hands of two laboratory theorists, Dean Frederick Rand Rogers and Dr. John Harmon, who were swivel chair operatives with a fine ear for the English language, sincere, educated, superior and well-spoken to the point of glibness.

Well, Pat peeled down and went back to horse sense and the ABC's of football, maybe combing the region for likely school-boy heeves and grizzlies on which to found his new deal.

He brightened the scene with gaudy jerseys, gold satin pants and spoke a whiskery language in a hoarse voice of authority, which left no mistake as to who was boss.

HE HAS NOT GONE VERY FAR in victories yet, because he lacks the coal-passer and steel-riveter type of power to work with. But this takes time, and B. U. will one day have a football department complete with shaggy yokel and derby hat muscles.

Next year Pat intends to move into Fenway Park where B. U. can get a payload of customers and help finance its athletic rebirth. And he is going to tease some of the dreadnaught type of college teams onto the B. U. schedule, including Northwestern, where his brother Dick is teaching the game.

This is pleasing to the army of B. U.'s alumni, which has ceased its grumbling and throat growls. And it is pleasing to the B. U. faculty for the sake of the ear-drum quiet it brings. And it is pleasing to the students, who want something to be proud about.

But whether it is pleasing to Dean Frederick Rand Rogers, the old apostle of athletic sanctuty, is a hoss of another color. Anyway he is keeping gracefully mum about it.

BILL TERRY OF THE NEW YORK GIANTS has discovered the germ of a smart idea in his decision to junk his ball club and start all over. Connie Mack did the same thing last year. So now, if the baseball owners would join together, pool their athletes each autumn and then choose up sides, they would adjust the balance of power and revive such dead spots as Philadelphia and Cincinnati in the National League and Chicago and St. Louis in the American.

It is the sad fact that wealth begets more wealth in baseball, and the poor owner is steadily made poorer. In looking around the leagues one finds that baseball is more than ever a rich man's game, in which the gravy goes to the Rupperts, Wrigleys, Breadons, Yawkeys, who have cellars full of spending cash.

The public, naturally, is unmindful of this and will not look a gift horse clear into that region which Senator Huey Long calls the "laryax." They will patronize a winner and shun a loser.

So the winners become richer and better able to fortify their strengths, and the losers become poorer and have to sell their few stars, like the Phulhes did with Bartell, to keep financially afloat.

IT WAS POP WARNER, THE inventor of the football system which carries his name, who took some sly digs at the Notre Dame method last year and drew a blistering fire from the several score of ex-Rockne players who are holding jobs in other colleges and attempting to impart the system as they learned it under Der Furst at South Bend.

The only Notre Dame-style team which Temple, which takes its football from Pop, has met this year is Marquette, which fell easy victim. But Saturday, in Holy Cross, Warner will get a sterner test and may have to eat his old slur without benefit of salt.

Andy Kerr, whose Colgate team is more Warner in its system than Pop himself, has an off-day this week and is going down to give his old master a hand

LAST SATURDAY I NOTICED, without paying much attention, that one of the Colgate players—a tackle named Charles Wasicek, was constantly hitching his breeches. Once, after a scrimmage, the pants slipped dangerously low around his thighs, and he grasped frantically for the belt loops with one hand while fumbling for the ball carrier with the other.

I have only learned that Wasicek has chronic pants trouble. He lost his breeks completely against Ohio State and again, during the mid-week practice, they came off three times. Reason is that Wasicek scarcely has any hips at all, nothing to cinch his belt around.

I have heard of horses called "snake-bellies," so narrow in the abdomen that the cinch strap continually slips and causes the rider to come tumbling overboard in his saddle. But this is my first experience with snake-hips on a football player.

THE TREASURY OF THE DEAN (St. Louis Cardinals) family is enriched by $50,000, due to Hollywood contract to make baseball shorts during the winter. The shorts are to be similar to those made by Bobby Jones two years ago.

Thus since the end of the season the brothers, Paul and Dizzy, have netted nearly $100,000 in barnstorming, vaudeville advertising and cinema fees.

Their commercial value, built mainly on their eccentricities, came from squeeking into the World Series by the thickness of a night club sandwich. Yet when Dizzy and Paul mutinied last summer and were fined several hundred dollars, Mrs. Dean remarked, "I can promise that they will be back to work immediately. The Dean family desperately needs the money."

All this new found wealth bespeaks increased independence and added difficulty for Sam Breadon when it comes time to sign to boys to their next year's contracts. Dis drew $7500 last year and Paul $5000.

Injured B. U. Regulars Will Face Rutgers

Boston University's football party pulled out of South Station this morning for New Brunswick, New Jersey, where it clashes with Rutgers tomorrow afternoon.

The Terriers were to arrive at their destination at 3 10 this afternoon and go through a short warming up drill. After tomorrow's game the squad will spend the night in New York and leave for home Sunday morning.

There were 29 players, two coaches, a trainer and manager in the party that left this morning.

The first eleven will have McEvoy and Van Ideratine, ends; Horofsky and Nichols, tackles, Captain Abodeely and Gubellini, guards Morosini, center; Maddocks, quarterback; Brown and McNamara, halfbacks, and Croke, fullback.

'Extra Point Lee' of Wildcats

JIMMY WALSH BERNARD LEE

Lee is so expert with his kicking that invariably he is called out of his guard position in the Villanova line to kick the extra point after a score. They're calling him "Extra Point Lee" and he will see action against Boston College tomorrow. Walsh, a back, is holding the ball for Lee in this picture. Better keep your tongue in, Bernie, boy. CRISLER'S BEST THREE BACKS FROM OHIO

By Dave Egan

O-hoo-hoo was once known as the State of Presidents; now it has become the State of Princeton football players.

Lurking somewhere in Ohio must be a sizzling Princeton old grad, a person who is a football fanatic.

He is probably in the insurance business, for insurance men are invariably greeters, with hands which are calloused from handshaking. They wear broad smiles and own a line of gab which compels a prospect to wear ear laps even in the summer months.

At any rate, the three chief cogs in the Princeton machine which is expected to chase the Harvard eleven out of the Stadium and over the Larz Anderson bridge are entitled Carry Levan, Elwood Kalbaugh and John F. Kadlic.

Master Elwood Kalbaugh stands five feet 11½ inches above the level of the sea and would displace 174 pounds of water if he were hurled into a tank full.

I do not know how much gin he would displace if he were hurled into a bath-tub full of the vile stuff, for we did not study that in the physics course at Severe High School.

He captains the team, plays center with fiendish delight, and, under severe grilling, confesses that he is from Bellaire, O-hoo-hoo.

Master John F. Kadlic would add five feet, eight inches to the height of the Empire State Building if he climbed to the highest turret and drew himself to his greatest height.

He weighs 185 pounds, and, as quarterback, does the master-minding for the rest of the young men. He also is brave enough to admit that he was escorted into this world of travail, where a bloke can't even win a two-dollar bowl bet, at Bellaire, O-hoo-hoo.

And they, oddly enough, happen to be the key men of a team which has not sipped of defeat since the start of the 1932 season. Kalbaugh provides the brawn; Kadlic the brain; and Levan bears the torch.

His Princeton confreres look upon Levan as the spark plug of the attack. He charges them with esprit de corps, verve, vim, and vinegar when he sprints on the field of play, and it is mainly for this psychological reason that

Princeton Loaded With High Grade Playing Talent

By H. R. "Tack" Hardwick

All-Time, All-American End at Harvard

Harvard football for the year 1934 is in a most precarious position.

The task to begin with was recognizedly of Herculean proportions. Facing Brown, Holy Cross, Dartmouth, Princeton and Army on successive Saturdays, with the three middle teams of this group prominently mentioned as candidates for the Eastern championship—needs no further comment.

A practically new coaching staff faced this schedule with unusually inexperienced material. Harvard supporters kept their fingers crossed and hoped for the best. Despite an evident lack of finish, the team in the first three games showed steady development, even though defeated by Holy Cross.

Certain apparent weaknesses were ironed out, and the future, although admittedly a stormy one, was not without a distinctly hopeful tinge.

Second and Third Elevens Good as Princeton Regulars

Then came Dartmouth, and Harvard slumped.

The charge of the line, the speed of the backs and interferers, the handling of the ball, the covering of passes, both its own and Dartmouth's, the complete familiarity with assignments—well, practically every phase of the game—with the exception of Haley's punting—looked woefully insufficient.

Nearly every team has in its system what is known as "the bad day," when nothing functions as it should. Princeton had it against Washington and Lee.

Perhaps Saturday was Harvard's day, and perhaps it is well to have gotten it off its chest. I wish I could sincerely believe such was the case.

Princeton, even before the season started, gave promise of being one of the best teams, if not the best team, in the East. With the exception of the jittery day against Washington and Lee, its play has given support to that promise. The material is exceptional—in fact, its second and third string reinforcements are nearly on a par with the regulars.

Coach Herbert O. (Fritz) Crisler's problem is one of selection, not of search. His ability as a coach needs no corroboration, as he is without question recognized as of top flight calibre.

And last but not least, the Tiger needs no incentive to be at its peak against Harvard. It has been waiting the day. It is primed for this one—in fact it may have to guard against over-eagerness.

Think of being able to select a backfield from Kadlic, Sandbach, Roulon-Miller, Kaufman, Constable, Pauk, Hill and Le-Van.

Add to that list MacMillan, an end, who has been doing much of the punting and who from the kicker's position, has passed and run with great effect.

Guards Alone Charge When Receiving Punts

And to make things worse, there is a polished and powerful line of forwards in front of that array of backfield talent, not the least among whom are Captain Kalbaugh and Gil Lea.

Yes, sir, there are all the earmarks of a pretty scratchy cat, and John Harvard will see plenty of fireworks while attempting to push it into a bag.

Miracles have happened, and another one may be due. Perhaps he'll drown the critter,—I hope, at least, he'll make plenty of fur fly.

Princeton has shown both last year and this a very unique play on receiving punts, which is well worth consideration. Look for it tomorrow.

When, from the position on the field, and the down and distance to gain it is evident the opponent must punt, the Princeton guards alone charge through and crash the protecting backs. The ends follow and block the opposing ends.

The rest of the team abouts face and tears down with the punt, turns sharply just before the receiver catches the kick, and, as he dashes up behind this splendid wall of interference, they do a hand picked blocking job on the startled opponents.

As a surprise play, to be used infrequently and only at a time when a kick is almost morally certain, it has great possibilities of being as successful as it is spectacular.

Speaking of the spectacular brings to mind the kick-off.

Much opposition has been raised against the kick-off and abortive attempts to remove it from the game are periodically made. It is to me, however, one of the most thrilling and most sporting plays in football.

Same Man Often Makes Kickoff Tackle

From a defensive viewpoint, it offers a competitive angle inherent in no other play. With the exception of the man who holds the ball, EACH and EVERY PLAYER has an EQUAL OPPORTUNITY to make the tackle.

All start from scratch, and the lad who runs fastest, who uses his head and his hands to the best advantage, will make it most frequently.

It is surprising how often one player on a team does make that tackle. The reason is that he keys himself to it, he combines determination with smartness.

It is a great sporting play and should engender a wholesome rivalry among teammates.

From an offensive viewpoint, the kick-off offers theoretically a better chance of scoring a touchdown than any other running play.

The players are so spread out that if each offensive player took effectively one man, the runner and the safety man would alone be left standing.

I can recall vividly several such instances. Then it is a question of "dog eat dog" and may the better man win.

CHEERING MOB GREET RUTH

By International News Service

Tokyo, Nov 2—A cheering throng of enthusiastic Japanese baseball fans crashed through police lines today to accord a great welcome to an all-star team of American professional baseball players arriving in Japan for a series of games with the country's first professional nine.

The local fans sought to shake hands with Babe Ruth, Connie Mack, Lou Gahrig, Jimmy Foxx, Lefty Gomez and other American baseball heroes included in the visiting group.

Pausing to bow before the gates of the palace of Emperor Hirohito the American stars were taken in a procession to a public park where an official reception was held with American Ambassador Joseph C. Grew delivering one of the principal addresses.

Ruth and Mack were to address Japanese fans in a radio broadcast tonight.

The All-Star team's first game is scheduled for Sunday. The American tour is being sponsored by the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri.

Bruins Clash With French

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 2—Bruins and Canadiens resume their exhibition series here tonight when they play their third game.

Bruins won the first, 2 to 1, at St John on Monday; Canadiens squared matters, 7 to 6, at Moncton, Wednesday.

A fourth game will be played at Quebec, Sunday.

LIGHT DRILL FOR ELI SQUAD

By Associated Press

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 2—Only a light drill was slated for the Yale football squad today to complete its preparations for the Dartmouth battle Saturday.

The Blue was to share the bowl today with the Indians, who set up temporary quarters at the Cheshire School in Roxbury shortly after their arrival this morning.

The loss of Kim Whitehead, brilliant fullback, to the Yale squad for the Golden Jubilee battle with Dartmouth was practically a certainty.

Head Coach Ducky Pond once again made a dramatic move yesterday, shifting Captain Clare Curtin from guard to his regular tackle position. No explanation was given by the Yale mentor for his decision to return the Blue leader to tackle after a one day's trial as a guard. With the exception of Whitehead, whose place has been taken by Stan Fuller, the Yale team which will face Dartmouth will be the same which opposed Brown and Army.

DARTMOUTH IN SPLENDID TRIM FOR YALE TEST

Mr. Boston Says:—

"Flash" Herber Here Best Forward Passer Will Worry Redskins

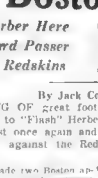
McCoy vs. Mignon Fuller and Madden Return to Action

By Jack Conway

SPEAKING OF great football passers, I respectfully call your attention to "Flash" Herber of the Green Bay Packers. He is in our midst once again and will be tossing forward passes and what not against the Redskins at Fenway Park Sunday afternoon.

Herber has made two Boston appearances, and on each occasion he dazzled great crowds by his marvelous ability to throw forward passes. In this respect, he is superior to such famous artists as Harry Newman and Benny Friedman.

I believe the Green Bay Packers did more than any other club to popularize professional football. They made it a wide open game. It was not uncommon to see them complete passes ranging from 40 to 55 yards.



Mr Boston

Football fans get more of a thrill out of watching a long pass to victory by the aerial route than from anything else connected with football.

'Lone Star Dietz has been driving the Redskins at a terrific clip this week. He says he is through coddling his players. He has acted the part of the flint hearted task master and has been getting astonishing results. Dietz looks for the Redskins to click on Sunday, and to score an impressive victory over the Green Bay outfit.

Cards Praise Redskins

THE CHICAGO Cardinals have been here this week getting ready for their Sunday game at Brooklyn. They have been liberal in their praise of the Redskins. They consider the local club the best they have met this season. The Dietz machine possessed plenty of drive as it sent the Cardinals down to defeat last Sunday.

Dennis Shea, general manager of the Redskins, tells me that if the team draws as well as he expects it will in its game with the Green Bay Packers and Chicago Bears, it will show a profit for the season. Professional football has gone over in a large way with old Dawn Public.

McCoy Accepts Challenge

BARNEY FOX called me on the telephone to state that Al McCoy is prepared to step to bat with Bud Mignon of Providence. Mignon has been tossing all kinds of challenges at McCoy. The latter is a two-fisted warrior, and is eager to punch home his argument in the ring.

* * *

Fox also informed me that Jack Madden, Roxbury featherweight will collide with Marty Gallagher at Washington on November 18.

THERE IS new interest in boxing in the out-of-town spots. The new club at Lynn is drawing well. It is expected that other cities will also show improvement as more local boxers come to the front. Boxing has had its share of ups and downs, but looks as if it is once more on the road back.

* * *

Sammy Fuller will swing back into action by clashing with Young" Peter Jackson, Coast lightweight, in a New York ring. Fuller has been training under the capable direction of Harry Kelley.

Kelley also sees signs of a pick up in boxing as a result of the large crowds that are turning out to see the boxers work at his gym on Hanover street. Harry says there are plenty of youngsters eager to make good in the ring and that with a few small clubs they will have their opportunity to make good.

* * *

Dick Dunn is getting ready for the sharpy A A opening at its new quarters at the Rickard Recreation Center on Friend street. The club will seat 1100 persons, and will devote its attention to local talent.

LOTT TO TOUR WITH TILDEN

By Universal Service

New York, Nov. 2—America's chances of a Davis Cup tennis victory in 1935 were lessened when George M. Lott Jr. of Chicago veteran doubles player signed a professional contract.

Lott, along with Tilden and H. Ellsworth Vines, will begin a four-months tour of the United States starting in Madison Square Garden on January 9 and ending on May 19.

Lott will receive 12½ per cent of the gross receipts.

LAMBEAU SEES GREEN BAY VICTORY

By Dave Egan

When Earl "Curley" Lambeau was 21 years old, he shook the dust of Notre Dame off his feet and headed back to his home town of Green Bay, Wis., to organize an eleven known as the Green Bay Packers.

By that time he had parted for good with some of Notre Dame's immortals. Eddie Rogers had come to coach Notre Dame to Lambeau's freshman year, when husky young men were eligible for varsity competition, and in that year of 1919, the back-field consisted of Lambeau fullback, Bahan, right half-back, and George Gipp at left half.

"Somebody said a short time ago," Lambeau expostulated this morning, "that the best system was to have the hardest tacklers, the fastest runners, the best blockers, and so forth.

"In the absence of that, I still think the Notre Dame system, with variations that open it up more, is the class."

Here the crinkly haired 36 year-old Lambeau submitted to a lengthy grilling.

Q—What do you think of the Preston outfit?

A—I picked them to win the championship of the Eastern division at the start of the season, and they still have a fighting chance.

Q—I say that Pinckert is the best blocking back in the league; that Turk Edwards is the best tackle, and that Battles is one of the best backs.

Q—How does your team compare with that of last year and the year before?

A—We won three championships in a row and some of the parts began to get rusty so now we are in the rebuilding stage.

Q—Still Notre Dame lost to Detroit and the Chicago Bears both undefeated teams?

A—Yes, the Detroit club beat us 3-0 on a 56-yard placement by Glenn Presnell after Bob Monell, 190 per cent up until that time, had missed a field goal from the 30-yard line, and the Bears, with the greatest team they've ever had, beat us 27-14. What games they were!

Q—Well if I miss you tomorrow I see you Sunday after the game. You'd want to make your alibi then won't you?

A—No, the Packers won't need an alibi. If it's a dry field we should win. If it's muddy, they may beat us. But you're going to see a football game, win or lose.

Chamberlain May Start at Halfback Post in Bowl Battle

By Bill Grimes

New Haven, Nov. 2—Dartmouth and Yale, but somebody must have told the sons of Eli Yale doesn't think nothing of it, for, outwardly at least, they are about as much concerned over the arrival of the Indians as subjects of the Green Bay Packers would be at playing Lowell Textile.

Head Coach Earl "Red" Blaik and his Green varsity party left Hanover, N. H. early in a morning. Three buses pulled up in front of the Inn at 6:30 a. m. and all were present or accounted for—even Joe Kiernan, who over-slept last Friday morning and all but missed the trip to Harvard.

Once he had his squad safely tucked away in the dining car Blaik was seen to relax.

Contrary to the prevailing opinion, Blaik has perfect control of his emotions before a major game. Although he makes it a practice to discourage requests to quote him he is an ideal train companion and, for a coach who is facing his first real test, has a keen sense of humor and a fine repertoire of football anecdotes.

When the train pulled into Bellows Falls, Vt., there was a sizable crowd on hand to greet Jack Wilson, the 175-year-old flying fullback, center who prepped at the local high school.

Boarding two large and lavacious buses, the Hanover aggregation rolled out to the Lapham Food House where they were to don their togs for their final work out.

Although still minus the services of Captain Jack Hill, the best kicker and passer and his two veteran tackles, Don Erion and "Ox" Counihan, Dartmouth is in better physical condition than a week ago.

Before the Harvard game it was questionable if either Bill Clark or Eddie Chamberlain would be available. Clark was used and it was a pass to "Pop" Nairne that paved the way for the Green touchdown. Chamberlain did not dress.

Clark came through without a scratch and is now as fit as a fiddle, while Chamberlain has recovered from his shock, for the present.

The Green will open with the same one that started the Harvard game i.e. Camp and Dirk Carpenter on the ends, Gordon Bennett and Don Otte tackles, Don Hagerman and Herb Kearns guards and Carl Mutt" Ray at center.

Dartmouth has capable end and tackle replacements, but it would appear as though the center trio would be called upon to duplicate last week's performance of playing through from whistle to whistle.

After about an hour in the Bowl, Coach Blaik planned to call a halt, and drive to the Roxbury school where his squad is to spend the night.

After dinner, the players will be taken to a movie" but taps will sound at 10:30.

YOUNG JACKSON COAST TERROR, IN N.Y. BOW

By Damon Runyon

(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service)

New York, Nov 2—Madison Square Garden tonight will hold its first indoor boxing show of the winter season of 1934-35.

A [illegible] bouts, with one brief [illegible] between heavyweights of no importance, has been arranged by Mr. Johnston, the boxing director.

Chief interest centers in the appearance of young Peter Jackson of California, a Negro lightweight, who comes well recommended as a fighter by the Pacific coast experts. He is to fight Tony Falco a fair sort from Philadelphia.

If Jackson is as good as rated by the Coast people he should defeat Falco without much trouble.

Barney Ross, the champion, declines to do business with the Garden, therefore the fervent desire of Mr. Johnston to dig up a new lightweight star.

Young Jackson's right name is Sam Martin. he was born in Georgia, not California, which claims him.

He is tall for a lightweight looks heavier than his 135 pounds is a counter fighter, and a left hooker. He has knocked out 32 of his 63 opponents, so he sounds very good

DEVLIN'S TEAM HOOKS UP WITH SOMERVILLE

By Bill Connell

Weeding out of the unbeaten school elevens continues at its merry pace of 1934 tomorrow afternoon with three leaders facing critical tests of their right to title rank.

Undefeated and untied Lawrence at Somerville Lynn English at [illegible] Beverly, Everett with its perfect record at stake at Manchester N H, with Central the foe are the games to watch for upsets.

There's a spectacular action on other fields, too. Rindge Tech at Newton, Malden at Brockton, Hingham at Hanklin, Cambridge Latin at Medford, Watertown at unbeaten Waltham, Peabody at Lynn Classical, Arlington at Portland Me and Bangor, Me., at Salem and Wakefield at Winthrop offer ideal football action.

Lawrence ranks a 5-4 choice pop ular as it travels to Dilboy Field to tackle Somerville. It gives so far it has an impressive record including a win over Salem, the latter's sole defeat

OUELETTE LAWRENCE AC.

Henry Ouelette in the backfield has been the headlined player at Lawrence. Yet the remaining 10 reculars are top flight. The team was green starting the year, and now has become a smooth unit with nice pass attack.

Somerville, beaten by Malden, tied without score by Chelsea and Medford and winner over Lowell, is a much underrated team

It has a heavy, capable line and fast backfield with Russ McNamara and Mido Iannacone A-1 carriers and pass handlers, and Frank Zammarchi, a smart quarterback. John Oxley big fullback, has been benched because of an injury and may not play

Summing up, the game offers enough fireworks to draw a capacity crowd to Dilboy Field, rain or shine. Increased police numbers and a fence around the gridiron seem sure to keep the crowd back and allow the game to proceed without hitch. The presentation is a standout.

Lynn English has taken some hard spills, but in the last couple of games has shown sufficient strength to promise trouble for unbeaten Beverly, one of the North Shore's best teams. This game goes on at Beverly and on the outcome may hang the home team's title chances.

EVERETT HAS EDGE

Everett probably will win at Manchester Central. The latter, Hobie McDonough's usual strong team, bowed to Malden last week by two touchdowns, Denny Gildea isn't discounting Central, though, and has Everett primed.

Sammy Gentile has regained top condition (he won two games while supposedly away below par) and this fact gives Everett the edge. But don't sell Central short.

Winthrop is unbeaten as it plays host to Wakefield, the strongest foe to date. Wakefield has power but when it sees Phil Chardon of Winthrop, it will be chasing the best back to oppose it all season

Cambridge Latin, with George Nichols in the backfield and the remainder of the young Cantab team confident after their seasoning of recent games, moves to Medford

Favored in Malden as it treks to Brockton, Malden found the offensive punch it needed (the line has been strong all season) with the insertion of Charley O'Rourke into the backfield.

With O'Rourke, Capt. Jim Reid, Leo Reardon and possibly John McClorey in there, Malden has strength to edge Brockton

RINDGE EXPECTS TO WIN

Rindge Tech, winner of its last three games, expects to add another victory at Newton High. Fitchburg is the natural favorite over Brookline. Watertown is unlikely to win at Waltham, Peabody and Lynn Classical at the Lynn Stadium are even

In two important intersectional games, Arlington can top Portland, at the Maine city tomorrow, Bangor, Me., rides to Salem, where the Witches are favored.

In the Catholic League race Immaculate Conception of Revere goes to St. Mary's in Waltham, Cathedral is at St. Mary's in Brookline, and Mission moves to Somerville to meet St. Clement's

English Favorite at Fenway

Boston English was in for one of the hardest football contests of the year today, in the meeting with Dorchester at Fenway Park. The game topped the list of a half dozen school events in and near Boston.

English was minus a capable leading the year, and its star backs, Jim Cuff, Al Munichello and Roger Battles had trouble gaining. But the English frontier has improved, and the team was the choice over Dorchester today.

St. John's Prep, one of the strongest teams Coach Tom McNamara has produced at the Danvers school, prepared for a game tilt with the Providence College freshmen.

VILLANOVA SQUAD HERE

By Walter Riley

Smarting from the treatment handed out by its last four opponents and promising to make Boston College the victim for its unusual stretch of hard luck, 33 Villanova players, headed by Head Coach, Harry Stuhldreher and Captain William Grimberg, arrived in Boston early this morning. They repaired immediately to Sandy Burr Country Club, which they will make their headquarters until after tomorrow's game with the Eagles at University Heights.

It has been an unusual year for the Mainliners and to date a most disappointing one. Two scoreless ties, two defeats and only one victory, that over Uranus, the team that a week later stunned Penn by a 7 to 6 victory, has been most disheartening to the visitors.

They are here in Boston primed for victory, the first in the string which they say will also include South Carolina, Manhattan and undefeated Temple.

But the former member of Notre Dame's vaunted Four Horsemen claims he is the last goal in the world to take the Eagles of Joe McKenney too lightly.

"Boston College is one of our main objectives," Harry remarked this morning. "We had the Eagles scouted against Fordham and were greatly impressed by the reports.

"We are forgetting all about their misfortunes against Western Maryland and Providence for we know the type of football coached by Joe McKenney. We consider him one of the nation's smartest coaches. We don't want to get caught on their rebound."

Stuhldreher plans several changes in his starting lineup, although he won't actually commit himself until game time. He has been using the veteran Joe Weisenbaugh at quarterback instead of fullback, and Ed Michaels at tackle, a move which is slated to add an offensive punch hitherto missing

The Eagles are making a few changes of their own so that a strange appearing lineup will open against Villanova.

Perhaps the most important newcomer to a varsity position is Attilio Ferdenzi, Natick sophomore of 185 pounds who ran riot against Providence when sent in to replace the injured Tom Brennan at fullback.

Owens Gilman, another sophomore, a Manchester, N. H., newcomer, will get his first real chance to bolster the Eagles' frontier when he goes into the tackle position vacated by Ted Galligan whose knowing has failed to impress.

Both Bob and Joe Current will start, the latter being the most improved ball carrier in the B. C. fold. Paul Flaherty, the Woburn junior, will once again be in at quarterback.

PRINCETON OUTSTANDING TEAM IN EAST, SAYS LOU LITTLE

Sport Celebrities Active Along Broadway Trail

By Pat Robinson
International News Service Sports Writer

New York, Nov. 2—Plenty of headliners bouncing along Broadway today . . . Here's Jack Dempsey . . . "Having some trouble getting my cafe opened opposite the Garden . . . open sure by Christmas, though . . . Take a look at my baby girl . . . How do you like her? Ain't she a peach? (You agree . . . "Looks like her daddy don't you think? (You disagree—Jennifer)

Here's Ed Barrow, major domo of the Yanks . . . "Can't understand why the White Sox don't grab Babe Ruth? They could pay off his salary opening day.

And Ed's shadow, A. Weiss, major domo of Yanks farm at Newark . . . The Yanks will have the fastest outfield in baseball next year—Chapman, Hill and Selkirk . . . Say, you're not chump enough to believe the Red Sox signed Crispin for five years, are you? No ball club does that any more . . .

Here's Jimmy Johnston, Garden matchmaker, with Peter Jackson, colored coast phenom, in tow . . . "Boxing's due for a renaissance . . . How do you like that one? . . . Got it out of a book . . . Knows every week, starting tonight . . . This guy's fighting and, say, don't get him wrong on his voice . . .

Jackson, a lad with the neck of a bull, the chest of a buffalo, the legs of a canary and the voice of a soprano, speaks up . . . In a voice three octaves higher than a Chinese tenor . . . "Yessuh, don't get me wrong . . . I fights better than I talks . . .

And here's Harry Mendel, the mouthpiece of the bike racket . . . Threatens that the next one starts in the Garden December 2 . . . Nothing can be done about this . . .

And here's George Dempsey and Louis Cohen . . . Just one hour in Hurley's . . . Did I see Mendel? . . . Why? . . . Well, he is due to go on non-skid grind in Detroit on a percentage basis . . . And what do we get? . . . Wait, I'll tell you . . . I get exactly 8½ cents for my end and Louis here owns himself $42 . . . Which way did Mendel go?" . . .

Here's Colonel John Hammond, Garden proxy . . . All smiles—not a hockey holdout in the league this season . . . We'll pack them in . . . Yes, hockey prices for the fans this year will be little higher this year in certain parts of the arena, but let's not go into that.

And strike me pink, if here ain't the two Deans—Dizzy and Daffy—hustling to take a train South . . . Closed their vaudeville act last night . . . Dizzy speaking . . . "Boy, we sure had them in the cities . . . Didn't we Paul? . . . We split about 50 grand . . . Buying Liberty bonds and small annuities . . . Ain't we Paul? . . . Guess the Cubs would give 125 g's for Paul . . . Wouldn't they Paul? . . . But if they split us we'll never pitch against each other . . . Will we Paul? . . . The Cards have got to pay me 25 g's next year or I don't pitch . . . Ain't that right Paul?" . . . Mrs. Dizzy . . . Impatiently . . . "Will you give that jaw of yours a rest and let's make that train . . . Ain't that right Paul?" . . . Paul nods agreement

Soph Makes Grade With Tech Quintet

Godwin Gay, an aspirant for Doc McCarthy's Beaver hoop quintet and ace of last year's freshman five, is bound to make the Tech veterans feel insecure if he continues to burn up the practice sessions with his fast down-the-floor work.

The lad from Cornwall, N. Y., has a height advantage on several of the other boys striving for positions. With a little polish added to his passing play, he should take the floor when the Engineers line up for the starting whistle.

Huntington to Play at Moses Brown

Huntington school gridders travel to Providence, R. I., tomorrow, to meet Moses Brown for the first time in three years.

Several new plays have been made to capitalize on Fred Bartos, jewing' line plunging ability. Fred played brilliant ball against Lawrence Academy last Friday.

Equipoise to Star in Whitney Stake

C. V. Whitney says the Wadsworth race at Narragansett Park, R. I., greatly benefited the thoroughbred.

CARL HANFORD OUT OF SADDLE FOR WEEK

By the Associated Press

There was a grim reminder of a turf tragedy at Pimlico yesterday when Carl Hanford, 17-year-old Omaha boy was thrown by Marcella H. in the third race. It was on this same track that Carl's brother, Buddy Hanford was killed in a fall two years ago.

Carl escaped serious injury in his tumble, but may not be able to ride again for several days.

Carl is under contract to C. H. M. (Tobe) Tobin. He rode the first winner at Rockingham Park last July, and since then has booted home 40 more.

Report has it that the four metropolitan tracks and Saratoga will use up the maximum allotment of 183 racing days next year. Under the law racing is permitted from April 15 to November 15.

Racing dates will be allotted at a meeting of the racing commission and the Jockey Club in January. Jamaica it is said, is dissatisfied because of the unsettled weather at that time of the year. Belmont Park, too, is understood to object to being allotted the first two weeks of September for its fall meeting.

Man Found Dead After Home Fire

St. Albans, Vt., Nov. 2—The body of Urish B. Northup, 69, retired business man, was found in a field near his home, shortly after fire had damaged his three story farm house.

He was shot through the head. Two revolvers were found on the ground beside the body. His watch, wallet, and a diamond ring were on his person. Papers found on the body indicated suicide.

Tech Hockey Team Takes Ice Nov. 12

Technology's puck chasers will be the first of the local college teams to skate out onto Arena Ice this season.

Manager Doggett of the M. I. T. forces announced today that George Owen has set November 12 as the date of the first workout on ice.

Jack Dempsey Mat Referee for Gordon

Jack Dempsey, the old Manassa Mauler, will referee the battle royal at Mechanics Building next Tuesday, and the one-time heavyweight king will have his hands full.

When such grapplers as Gil La Cross, Wren Robbins, Memphis and Ted Germaine meet in the same ring, plenty of punches should fly.

The entire Boston University band, comprising 65 men will be on hand as guests of Promoter Charlie Gordon.

And With Many Out of Work!

Bob Granberg, Tech senior, who will lead the Beaver mermen in their swims this year, is forced to burn the midnight oil, as heavy is the pressure of his daytime activities.

Bob, who will swim the 100-yard freestyle, is adept at serving food in Walker Memorial dining hall, and recently had his name approved by the Tech dean as a tutor for lower classmen who find that their studies are throwing them for a loss.

President Anthony Alving, Manager Sam Snyder and Coach Morley and representatives of the Boston Evening American, will announce within a fortnight the winners of the Name Contest award. Cash prizes and season tickets will be awarded.

Mat Results

Lynn—Al Mercier, Springfield, and Casey Kazaglian, California, went to three-fall draw. Mercier took first fall in 6:15 with Flying dropkick and body press; Kazaglian scored in 9:30 with body press and slam. Both falls were not on same mat after 50 minutes of the third fall, and the referee declared it a draw.

New York—Rudy Dusek, Omaha, threw Mike Romano, Italy; Herman Hickman, Tennessee, and Yanko Zelezniak, Russia, drew; Bill Fischer, New Brunswick, N. J., downed Scotty McDonald, Canada, three falls; Johnny Meyers, Germany, drew with Mario Mazzei, Italy; Eddie Pope, Ireland, downed Karl Madsen, Sweden.

Seattle, Wash.—Ivan Nemish, 230, Seattle, Wash., threw Orville Brown, 225, Walla Walla.

NASSAU, GREEN WINS SEEN BY LION COACH

By Lou Little
Head Coach, Columbia University

(Copyright, 1934, by International News Service)

New York, Nov. 2—Having reached the halfway mark of the football season, we find that here in the East the outstanding unbeaten and untied teams are Army, Navy, Dartmouth, Princeton and Syracuse. And it's not an easy job to pick the best of that lot!

Next from the standpoint of interest, I'd say Dartmouth will be a game which we, as well as most Dartmouth, undefeated and uncored upon in five games, will attempt to beat the Yale team. Dartmouth has never won a game at the Yale Bowl and is most anxious to come through tomorrow.

I look for Dartmouth to win tomorrow. Yale will have a psychological advantage because of its past superiority at the Bowl, but I pick Dartmouth by a whisker.

The only other undefeated and untied team in New England is Villanova. The Wildcats have won four straight games, three of them by the margin of one touchdown.

Tomorrow, however, they face New Hampshire, and I honestly believe that the Wildcats will come through with an upset and defeat Tufts by a touchdown.

Here in Boston Boston College will be host to Villanova . . . Eagles after a streak of bad . . . some whereas, we didn't, watched Villanova upset in five games, and as a result lost two in a row. Joe McKenney is one of the top coaches in the country, and I am not looking for a . . . tomorrow but do here . . . Gang will make a good . . .

Villanova is a favorite, but I am riding with the Eagles to win by a touchdown.

Northeastern, undefeated but tied once, should continue to keep its state clean tomorrow when it acts as host to Arnold. The Conpecticut school won by a single point last year, and Al McKay's boys should even matters tomorrow and win by at least two touchdowns.

Mt. Pocono Orioles team goes to Bridgeport and will be meeting an opponent a little out of its class. We . . . we don't . . . than 20 pounds to a man on the average . . . and . . . Lam . . . tomorrow . . . gang will . . .

Tigers Will Win by 4 Touchdowns, Dartmouth by Whisker---Hanley

By L. B. "Pat" Hanley
Head Coach at Boston University

(Written exclusively for and copyrighted by Boston American and International News Service)

Both games count for New England and intersectional honors, and especially because of the publicity which has been built up during the eight years the two institutions have been apart.

Although Harvard may give Princeton a fairly stiff battle, it looks to me as though Princeton will win by four touchdowns.

Next from the standpoint of interest, I'd say Dartmouth will be a game which we, as well as most Dartmouth, undefeated and uncored upon in five games, will attempt to beat the Yale team. Dartmouth has never won a game at the Yale Bowl and is most anxious to come through tomorrow.

TIGERS' STARS FROM OHIO

The invading assassins will arrive at the Bark Play station at 2:10 this p. m., when they will be whisked to the Stadium for signal drill, whence they will be whisked to the Belmont Spring Country Club, where Dartmouth stayed last week.

History will record the fact that Kreisler was an artist with a fiddle, Chrysler an artist with an automobile, and Crisler an artist with a football team.

"Fritz" Crisler assisted Amos Alonzo Stagg at University of Chicago from 1922 to 1930, coaching freshman basketball and varsity baseball in addition. Then he became director of athletics at Minnesota.

In 1932, he brought the pulmotor to Princeton. The Roper system had broken down like a jaded old race horse. And Crisler came out of the West, to snap Princeton right out of the doldrums, willy-nilly.

His first season was the best Princeton had had since '28, despite the fact that his outfit did not win a major game. But Princeton tied Navy, Cornell and Yale, and was beaten by Michigan only 8-6.

Last year, his young men were undefeated, and conquered, among others, Columbia, which went on later to beat Stanford in the Rose Bowl classic. This season, they are still riding high, wide and also handsome.

NEW '30' LINE PLANNED BY LEAFS

By Associated Press

The Toronto Maple Leafs may develop a new 6-4 line this season to take the title from the famous combination of Chuck Conacher, Busher Jackson and Joe Primeau who stepped from junior amateur ranks right into the big league. The new trio is Pep Kelly, Nick Metz and Art Jackson from the St. Michaels College team which won the junior title last year. If they are retained Hal Cotton and Andy Blair and Ken Doraty might also will be sent to the minors or sold.

Two only other prospect on the Maple Leaf list is Busher Hourd who was on loan to Ottawa this season but has been recalled to the Toronto Leafs by Manager Alex Levinsky, sold to the New York Rangers.

Salem, Mass., John—At Rose Bowl Curtis boss, is very much interested in the ownership of a certain baseball club so far that has not been revealed. The cut focused to be his hotel Halloween party. Art thought that was a good idea to be in being to get the Red Sox. Curtis spent and spent for the right to put the owner's on Boston to perform in the Rose Bowl Cup football opening of the next season that far.

Oshawa, Ont.—Charles "Rabbit" McVeigh is scheduled to start his 11th season of big league hockey as utility player with the New York Americans. His ability as a rugger when his team is short-handed and his mastery of the art of sinking penalty shots makes it certain he will stick with the club.

Toronto—The veteran Elmer Ridley Muir seems to be following the New Haven Eagles rounding to condition. He played right end and will wing to-gether as third drill, which saved only body creaking, and may get the regular left wing berth.

St. Louis—When the St. Louis Eagles play golf on the links they can get some pointers from Gen Davidson the wingman who came to the Lib from the Montreal Maroons. He is assistant professor of a Montreal golf club in the summer.

Champaign, Ill.—Norm Locking the speedy young center who is filling the net on the Chicago Blackhawks' line caused by Doc Romnes' holdout, didn't cost the club a cent when he first came to camp as all the Hawks later had to buy him back. Teddy Graham brought him in the first time but he was released to St. Paul.

College Park Ga., Nov. 2 (AP)—Home town folks of College Park and Red Oak neighbors and friends who watched him travel from the sandlots to baseball's high ranks paid tribute to Joyner (Jo Jo) White at a dinner here last night.

Miss Elegance, a juvenile that has shown unusual promise in her maiden race, is dropped in with an inconsistent lot of moderators for the feature of the opening card and I have a hunch she'll be

MISS ELEGANCE, WINGED FLIGHT, VALISE

Fakus	116 Miss Elegance 108
Mowan	116 Valise 118
Winged Flight	108 Spiculor 118

MISS ELEGANCE looms as a pretty tough proposition in this affair. The opposition is the weakest she has yet encountered. WINGED FLIGHT is a gelding that has been close up at times, but seems to need the confidence VALISE has on the improved track and breaks from the pasture.

BAMBOLA, SOME KNIGHT, BING CROSBY

Some Knight	116 Bambola 116

BAMBOLA with a bit of class a drop down while she could not find to retain Brandon. By a couple of weeks back she doubled Dalton and the $1500 variety SOME KNIGHT was awarded considerable support to grab a shifty field at time but failed to finish in the picture. Mayhap that the George Odlo colorbearer will find his true stride on the event. BING CROSBY has been saved for this number and should go well.

FORT SPRINGS, LITTLE LIE, BRANNON

Little Lie	112 Fort Springs 112
Brannon	108

FORT SPRINGS needs only to run back to his last winning race in order to rank brackets in this affair. The Hendrie colorbearer won this contest with ease. LITTLE LIE a successful performer against the best platers around New York the past summer, looms as the main danger. BRANNON was favored over the top one in their last meeting, but looks to be better than to finish a poor third under weight handling.

POMPOLEON, WAYLAYER, ADOBE POST

Pompoleon	112 Waylayer 112
Adobe Post	112

POMPOLEON strikes me as the class of this affair. The Pompey colt has been up against it in record sets and these efforts may be tossed into discard. If anything hands him a drubbing it will likely be WAYLAYER. The latter has been especially steppied for an event of this sort. ADOBE POST is entitled to some consideration of his last winning race.

QUEL JEU, MINEY MYERSON, ISIAH

FIFTH RACE—$2500, added, the Aqueduct, claiming steeple, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs.

Quel Jeu	110 Quisale 107
Hyperion	108 Isiah 110
Mama Cabore	106 Mama Cabore 106
Miney Myerson	110 Speedy Bright 103
Lady Bud	110

Daily Racing Form selection.

This is by far the toughest race of the day. My advice is to go easy on wagering. QUEL JEU, an in-and-outer, must be accorded top figures on his last race, although it is no cinch that he'll run back to that effort. MINEY MYERSON turned in her best race of the meeting when she was nosed out by Jesting last time. ISIAH is in well under 110 pounds and will likely be on the "Bill Daly" as far as he goes.

TERALICE, HOKUAO, MAD PRUMP

Teralice	114 Hokuao 115
Vulcan	110 Prince Jack 113
Mad Prump	110 Kolin 113

If that last race may be taken as a true criterion TERALICE is once more on the fast side. The Pace colt-horse was beaten on a trifle more than a half a length in the time of 1 10 4-5 by Okapi, All Fortunes and Equipoise in the memorable affair. When right, he is fully capable of handling a field of this sort. HOKUAO, a winner of two straight races, shapes up as the more dangerous of the others. MAD PRUMP looks next best.

MODERN ACE, SANTERNO, BYLONA

Modern Ace	112 Grand Jest 111
Bylona	112 Arroyo 111
Santerno	114 Lance Jolly 111

Stealthy Step	112

STEALTHY STEP looms as a strong contender on the strength of his last two races. Surely nothing more than he showed in that last outing. STEP AWAY comes from an outfit that misses few mistakes when they are shooting. Mayhap that this may be the spot. PANBULA, a fleet trier away from the barrier should hold on long enough to share the short end of the spoils.

KYNE REALIZES BOYHOOD DREAM

By Associated Press

San Mateo, Cal., Nov. 2—The lifetime dream of a former San Francisco newsboy will come true tomorrow, when the new $800,000 Bay Meadows horse racing plant opens with William P. Kyne as general manager and one of the chief stockholders.

First track to be built and operated since pari-mutuel betting was legalized in California two years ago, the Bay Meadows oval was conceived by Kyne, who since the days he hustled newspapers has risen to a position of eminence in the turf racing world.

Situated twenty miles south of San Francisco, the new track is modern in every detail, from its quarter million dollar totalisator to the airplane landing field which will be located a stone's throw from the racing strip.

Headlining the inaugural program will be the "Stockton Handicap" a six furlongs sprint for three-year-olds and up. Eighteen stake horses were nominated for the inaugural

GildeaRefuses to Lift Ban on Grid Star

Nick Bellafatto, star fullback of Everett High, is definitely off the Everett squad, Coach Dennis Gildea made it known today. Bellafatto tossed his equipment into the clubhouse at Everett Saturday and watched the Revere game from the sidelines, but it was believed that it was only a question of discipline and that he would return to the squad.

"We have better fullbacks than Bellafatto," Coach Gildea declares. "His loss will not be felt. I informed him last week that another player would start the Revere game and he immediately left the squad. Opperbeck outclasses Bellafatto. So far as I am concerned, Bellafatto is through for the season."

12-Meter Series Is Planned

New York, Nov. 2 (US)—With T O M Sopwith and a challenge from England almost definitely out of the picture, plans have been announced by the North American Yacht Racing Union for an international 12-meter yacht series next summer off Newport, R. I., as a replace the America's Cup event.

Tentative acceptances have been received from England, Norway, Sweden and France, it was announced. The race is open to yachts of all countries.

TOBACCO ECONOMY WITH PLEASURE!

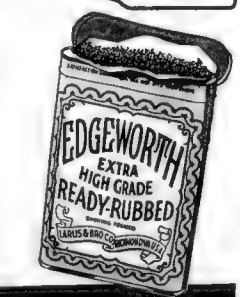
YOU CAN SAVE WITHOUT SUFFERING. GOOD OLD EDGEWORTH IS THE LONG, LONG SMOKE.



WE DON'T want to start an argument—or suggest a contest—but smokers of Edgeworth are reporting to us fifty minutes to an hour and ten minutes a pipeful. We confess to fifty minutes ourselves. Edgeworth smoker G. M. Booth of Calgary, Canada, tells us that one pipeload of Edgeworth has lasted him as long as one hour and ten minutes.

Why look further if you are interested in saving money on your smoking? Here is economy with pleasure.

Why endure a cheap, low-grade tobacco to save money when you can really save with long-burning Edgeworth? Edgeworth is 15 cents a tin and it is the highest-grade pipe tobacco fifty years of experience have shown us how to make. If you paid us a dollar a package we would not know how to make better pipe tobacco than Edgeworth.

Get a 15-cent tin of Edgeworth and experience the thrifty thrill of an hour a pipeful. You will agree that this is one time when economy is a real pleasure.

MANUFACTURER'S NOTE — The reason Edgeworth burns so much longer in your pipe is the extra Edgeworth process used in its preparation. It is a technical matter too complicated to describe here. We mention it so that you will know that the long-burning feature of Edgeworth is based on a definite fact. Not all pipe smokers can get an hour a pipeful from Edgeworth. That is because smoking methods differ. But any pipe smoker can get more hours of smoking out of Edgeworth than from fast-burning tobaccos. Edgeworth is made by Larus & Bro. Co., Tobacconists since 1877, Richmond, Virginia.

Enjoy EDGEWORTH and save money

'BULLET' TRAIN ON EXHIBITION HERE TODAY

Bostonians were able to view the record breaking Union Pacific "bullet" train at the South Station today from 9 o'clock in the morning until the same hour at night.

The streamlined special which crossed the continent in three laps at a speed that sometimes reached 120 mile an hour on its test run, made the Providence to Boston dash in 44 minutes last night. This was at the rate of 87.38 miles an hour and it could have gone faster.

No discomfort is felt by passengers those who made the trial trip in New England said. The New Haven railroad is going to have one of these new Diesel engine-powered trains in service by February 1, 1935.

Poll Deputies Banned

Declaring that state and town election officials will guard adequately against irregularities in the conduct of voting on Tuesday, United States Marshal John J. Murphy announced that he would not send deputies to supervise polling in the cities and towns of Massachusetts Tuesday, as previously announced.

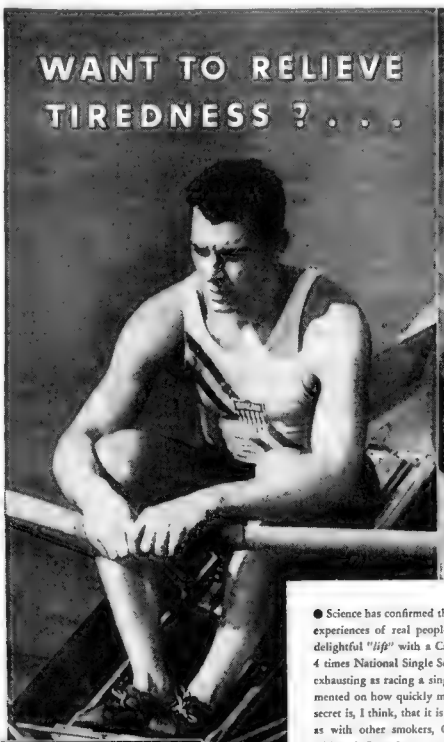
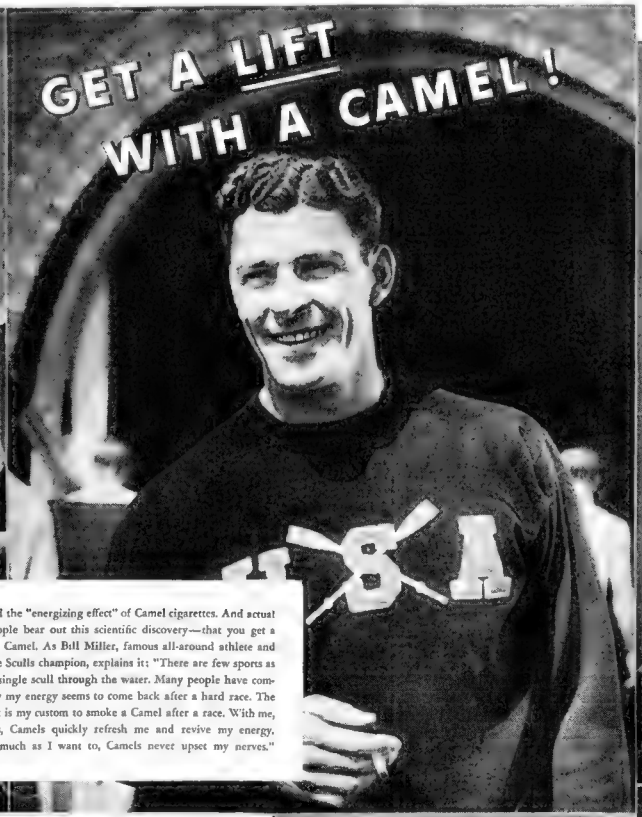
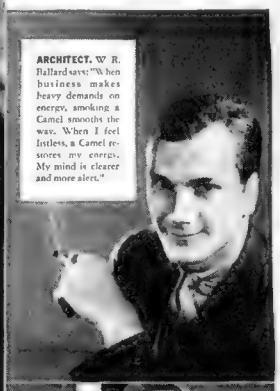
GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL !





● Science has confirmed the "energizing effect" of Camel cigarettes. And actual experiences of real people bear out this scientific discovery—that you get a delightful "lift" with a Camel. As Bill Miller, famous all-around athlete and 4 times National Single Sculls champion, explains it: "There are few sports as exhausting as racing a single scull through the water. Many people have commented on how quickly my energy seems to come back after a hard race. The secret is, I think, that it is my custom to smoke a Camel after a race. With me, as with other smokers, Camels quickly refresh me and revive my energy. Although I smoke as much as I want to, Camels never upset my nerves."



ARCHITECT. W. R. Ballard says: "When business makes heavy demands on energy, smoking a Camel smooths the way. When I feel listless, a Camel restores my energy. My mind is clearer and more alert."

YOUNG SOCIETY MATRON: "Camels are a grand-tasting cigarette," says Mrs. Allston Boyer of New York. "They are so mild and rich. And it's marvelous how smoking a Camel revives my energy."

Pat O'Brien in Bright Film Comedy

By ANN AMES

A light and bright comedy, which will entertain everybody and incidentally prove a revelation to ladies who love antiques, is at the Paramount and Fenway, where Pat O'Brien stars as the world's most colossal auctioneer. "I Sell Anything," is the title and Pat's slogan as Spot Cash Cutler, the big, breezy and not overly scrupulous gentleman who's preludes to "Going, Going Gone," are masterpieces of salesmanship. Pat's shop, into which knick-knacks from pawn shops are knocked down to gullible customers, is on Second avenue. The profits are sure but hardly handsome and until Pat makes the mistake of disposing of an original Cellini buckle for a paltry $50, everybody's happy. Millicent Clark from Park avenue has resold the bauble to the Metropolitan Museum for $500, and quite unreasonably, so Pat believes, refuses to split the profits.

Instead the soft-spoken and shrewd young woman sets Pat up a few blocks east in a decidedly more pretentious establishment, and eventually talks him into disposing of a lot of fake antiques and works of art, supposedly from the home of one of New York's bankrupt first families.

The sequences showing the "aging" of pure Grand Rapids furniture into Louis XVI stuff is pure tripe from start to finish, and the other tricks of the antique trade are both amusing and illuminating. Of course the smart aleck Spot Cash meets his Waterloo in Millicent, who's just a little bit smarter and doesn't talk so much about it. She gets off with the cash, Pat goes back to his Second avenue cronies, and does the best job of his life selling himself to his old girl Barbara, who loved him all the while. We're left to assume that the customers remained "suckers," happy in the knowledge that their antiques were authentic and their bargains amazing. It's hinted that the long arm of the law will catch up with Millicent.

The magnetic Mr. O'Brien has another of the roles in which he must be both lovable and conceited. That he does it so well is achieve both, to the satisfaction of the ladies both on the screen and off, is a tribute to his personal charm which can't be overlooked. He's grand in the part. Claire Dodd, fated always to be the girl who's not quite a lady, does well as the gal who knew her way from Second to Park and back again.

"London, Paris and New York" to Be Joseph Santley's First Under New Contract

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Nov. 2—The ink is scarcely dry on a swell contract which Joseph Santley has signed with Jack Warner. And very nice, too, for Warner Brothers to get Joe, for he can write, he can direct and he can act. In fact, his very first picture for Warners will be "London, Paris and New York," a Santley story in which the erstwhile musical comedy favorite will direct and perhaps play a part.

This should be right down Joe's alley. If he does play a part, for it's to be a musical with plenty of songs, dances and girl ensembles. It was Santley who authored "East of 56th Street," one of Kay Francis' best pictures of last year, and it states in the contract that Santley will not only write stories for himself but for all the Warner Brothers stars.

Gossip was stilled today when an announcement came from New York that Sidney Kent had Louella O. Parsons inked a new three-year contract as president of the Fox Film Company. Certain of the trade journals have erroneously published from time to time that Mr Kent was leaving Fox and that there would be a complete change in executive personnel. Winfield Sheehan remains in complete charge of Fox production on the West Coast with the company functioning as it has in the past.

I am wondering whether Lanny Ross or Paramount is right. When Lanny left town he said goodbye to movies and Hollywood and announced in the future he would concentrate on radio. Today they told me on the Paramount lot that Lanny owed them two pictures and that they were arranging for him to play in "Margie," by Stephan Moorhouse Avery, which will star Sir Guy Standing. Lanny was a little upset when he went East, believing that he hadn't had the right opportunity, but I have seen lots of stars leave and lose of them return. So, maybe he and Paramount will get together.

Chatter in Hollywood

I keep hearing of a romance between Evelyn Brent and Harry Fox. Interesting, if true, since they were vaudeville partners and appeared in an act together for over a year. Miss Brent was formerly married to Harry Edwards and only recently filed suit for divorce against him. Mr. Fox was formerly the husband of Jenny Dolly and has recently separated from his second wife. He now has a position with the Fox company and, according to his friends, is working hard to establish himself in the movies.

Almost any nice day when Charles Bickford isn't working in the movies you can see him in his overalls, working in his filling station. He believes in giving his business personal attention. However, he will be away from the station a few weeks now because he has gone hunting in Arizona, after which he will go to Universal to play the lead in "I Murdered a Man," a story by Colin Clements and Florence Ryerson. This is an Eddie Laemmle picture.

IRISH PAGEANT BOOK HAS WORK OF SCHOLARS

Among the many contributors to "The Book of the Pageant," published in connection with "The Pageant of the Celt," scheduled for presentation at Boston Garden from Nov. 22 to 25, inclusive, are three scholarly priests who enjoy wide reputations in their distinctive fields.

The Rev. Hugh O'Gallagher, CSC, of the University of Notre Dame, is the author of an article entitled "An Taisneanadh Seanculuin gaedealach," (The Irish Pageant) and written in the Gaelic language.

Fr. O'Gallagher is a native Gaelic speaker and an authority on Irish literature. Owing to the fact that it is almost impossible to find Gaelic type in this country, Fr. O'Gallagher's article is reproduced in "The Book of the Pageant" in its written form, plates having been made from his handwriting manuscript.

This will likewise give those unacquainted with the Gaelic characters an opportunity to see them as they are written.

Another article in "The Book of the Pageant" is from the pen of the Rev. Thomas Talbot, CM, of the English department at De Paul University. His subject is "The Celtic Revival" and in it he traces the literary movements in Ireland from its inception to the present day.

The Rev. Bernard A. Foote, SJ., a member of the faculty of Loyola University, Chicago, is the author of "Ireland, the Monastery of Nations," which may be read in "The Book of the Pageant" by those attending the spectacle at Boston Garden, in aid of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund.

ABOUT FACES by ART MOGER

NOW PLAYING AT THE METROPOLITAN THEATRE

Meet someone new in today's "About Faces" series!

In today's Boston Evening American's fascinating feature you will discover one of Hollywood's most recent importations. You can see all of these stars at the Metropolitan Theater, where the screen offers "Marie Galante," the widely discussed motion picture of 1934. The stage presents "Bamboula," featuring a host of well known Broadway favorites. Fabien Sevitzky and the Grand Orchestra and selected short subjects complete the hours of real entertainment.

You will find a block of squares beneath the names of today's "About Faces" drawings. These squares equal the number of letters in their names. Fill in these squares correctly and use the letter given as a clue. After you have visited the Metropolitan Theater today, you will find the answers to your solutions. "THE PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS" PROVES GOOD ENTERTAINMENT AT PREMIERE

Lights and Shadows

By George Holland

Slipping the cut direct to society, which has pretended to ignore his presence in town, Prince Mike Romanoff, attended by an adoring court and his Chancellor, Harry Richman, played host from 12.01 a. m. until dawn, today, to a brilliant assemblage of two dozen actors and two newspaper persons, in the famous French room of the Hotel Ritz-Carlton, facing the Public Gardens.

The Prince, in a brief speech of welcome, greeted his guests at Imperial dinner most modestly. "Wear not out your palms in applause," he implored them. "My audiences at 'Say When' know and respect my distaste for tumult. Let us drink in 'Say When' and be merry and forgetful of expense." The extent of the Prince's terrific aplomb may be understood partially from this greeting, as a moment later Edward Wyner, cosmopolite-owner of the Hotel Ritz-Carlton, confided to me that duplication of the Prince's dinner-menu, upon which Mr. Wyner had collaborated, would be a losing matter at $100 a plate.

But Prince Mike's allowance from Russia, it is alleged, is due tomorrow. "Cheerio for the New Deal, and rah for our rubles," cheerio-ed His Highness. A year ago something like this would have been impossible. But your nice, obliging dollar, although the Chancellor Richman took him in hand, "No politics, Your Highness, the Chancellor exhorted. "Remember the play's the thing. And we're opening in New York a week from tonight. Let us not offend either Republican or Democrat."

"Of course, old chap," His Imperial Highness replied. "Now about those good fellows, the waiters. You see, it's the eve of the arrival of my imperial remittance. It is dispatched promptly to arrive here on the first of the month, but I allow generally for a day's delay. Meanwhile I'm embarrassed to no end. Quite without a sou."

"I know, Prince," was the sympathic reply.

"You should," said the Prince, equally sympathic, as they walked away.

Play Based on Old New England Custom Is Fun From Start to Finish at Hollis

By HARRIS MORGAN

The spirit of '76 in the matter of courting was more considerate of the swain, if we are to believe "The Pursuit of Happiness," than the spirit of the present day. To save firewood, the Revolutionary males went a-bundling, that is, shed of their boots, they sparked their fair ones under the covers, a center-board keeping the trysts most proper. Merely to save firewood for the girl's family. No challenge to the suspected that they should escort their brides-to-be to the gay spots of the city appears in this enjoyable comedy by Alan Child and Isabelle London, which opened at the Hollis Street Theater last night.

If it hadn't been for the custom of bundling there would have been no play called "The Pursuit of Happiness." Authors Child and Loudon, who are masking their identities (Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Langner—he being of the Theater Guild directorate—) stumbled or found a grand notion for a comedy in this bundling business of Revolutionary days. Without straining they weave the subject into a conflict between a man of the cloth—but What a Man—and the parents of young Prudence Kirkland.

In the Connecticut homestead of Captain Aaron Kirkland there appears a young Hessian who wishes to desert the British side. He is brought into the sitting room of Captain Kirkland at gun point. He falls in love with Mistress Prudence, Captain Kirkland, an amiable and liberal Colonial, finds no objection to this situation.

But his wife, Comfort, favors Sheriff Thaddeus Jenkins, a candidate for Prudence's hand who is endorsed by Rev. Lyman Banks, the town reverend. This forms a ludicrous, if never wholly-believable triangle as played currently. Dwight Frye as the Heroin, and Laurette Bullivant as Prudence Kirkland carry the brunt of the performance, and Frank Camp as Captain Kirkland has his share of responsibility.

John F. Hamilton as Rev. Banks was the most cadaverous divine ever portrayed on any stage land Mr. Morgan has a good memory). He looked like something the Kids would think up to frighten their elders of a Halloween. And he can act, which is more than Mr. Morgan can say for Albert Frisch who played Sheriff Jennings. Much more.

But not a bit benign about it, nor superior in the merest wit, it may be reported that "The Pursuit of Happiness" is fun from the start, colorful and interesting in every scene, and worth a passing evening of anybody's time. That, our faithful, is what good writing can effect.

"Power" Ranks With Greatest of Films; Conrad Veidt's Portrayal Is Superb

By JOYCE DANA

A [illegible] film came to the Fine Arts Theater yesterday. Absorbing in its drama for [illegible] human appeal, superbly cast and magnificently directed by Lothar Mendes, "Power" will stand as a monument to all that is finest and best in motion pictures.

Based on the novel "Jew Suss" by Lion Feuchtwanger, "Power" [illegible] a boy of the Ghetto in the 18th century, following the [illegible] Karl Alexander bitterly [illegible] determined at the cost of all else [illegible] Duke.

Also from the Much [illegible] comes Conrad Veidt, who, fresh from the [illegible] of his despicable [illegible] his love of his daughter. Naomi, whose mother had died [illegible] He never [illegible] exceeds [illegible] Veidt is brought about [illegible] advances of the [illegible] sweeps a [illegible] vengeance. Once it is accomplished, it brings him to the pinnacle [illegible] a terrifying and powerful [illegible]

[illegible] irony in the [illegible] when Suss discovers [illegible] for after all a Jew, and [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] deny it when that denial would save him from death.

Conrad Veidt's performance is a triumph. It is unbelievable that Hollywood, which [illegible] loaned an actor of his greatness to [illegible] No single performance in talking films [illegible]

PARKER RUST PROOF RECORD IS GOOD

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Parker Rust Proof directors have declared an extra dividend of one dollar per share as well as the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents. This established a new high record for 1934. As we reported here three months ago, the New England Financial Service has been pointing out specifically calling our attention to the issue since the declination at the end of the first quarter, at a ten per cent stock dividend basis. The same payment was made at the quarter and now the regular 52 cent rate is established on cash extra. Selling under 50, it does not seem to have been over-exploited on the upside.

Type Portrait, Charles A. Collins, president of the Boston Stock Exchange . . . whose forte seems to be serving as president of organizations celebrating centenaries . . . He is now serving the Boston Exchange in that capacity as it celebrates the start of trading 100 years ago today . . . And a few years ago the Lynn Institution for Savings marked its centennial when he was its president . . . Which office he still holds as well as that of trustee . . . Quiet, soft spoken he produced great wonderment at the positions he holds . . . The answer seems to be that somebody must not be continues to be reelected.

The potential influence of a housing campaign is no longer being treated as "just another par" Reports of the wonderful results in England seem late . . . to point for the sheet of plate glass dized low-cost building over there has been acting as a general lubricant stimulant for improving social standards and serving as the best unemployment relief scheme yet . . . The announcement of President Roosevelt today makes it appear as though we would definitely be on the same course. And remembering the article in Today a few weeks ago concerning England's home building by Mr. Baruch we wonder if the New Yorker's fine hand is not discernable in the announcement.

It is tiresome to remain on the sidelines session after session. But it is just as tiresome to keep repeating it here. Yet there is nothing else to do in the writer's opinion. The last time refused to present a solid substantial bull clue and we personally see no use in trying to outguess the guessers. A too rapid rebound from current levels would be almost certain to be followed by a dip. Strangely enough we will be better off waiting. Because if stocks hold above recent lows we will be in a much safer buying zone.

Notes: A participation barometer privately compiled by the writer does not gain as we expect it to during real accumulation periods . . . Usually a distinct upward move in the participation number signalizes the making of a firm base . . . We will report it immediately if and when it appears . . . So despite the outlining of favorable behavior by certain issues we continue aloof . . . But the stocks noted above are among those we hold in high opinion . . . And in them we will do most of the buying for our hypothetical position.

United Gas Output

Electric output of the United Gas Improvement System for week ended October 27 increased to 72,606,180 k. w. h., from 70,362,855 in like week last year, increase of 3.3 per cent.

Trading Range Narrow in Dull Market Session

By WALL STREET SPECTATOR

All days are alike in Wall Street now. There isn't much trading and prices generally just flop around in a narrow range.

It looked for a while as if the sagging rails would bring some activity and dollar prices of a kind, but the little damage that was done was largely repaired at the close. Perhaps the passing of the elections will stir things up, if people don't start worrying too much about the next Congress and the new after diff outlines.

Curious that traders haven't been paying much attention to these indirect Washington invitations to do a little speculating.

The President the other day stated he expects a big business next year, repeating in different words what he said several weeks ago . . . Furthermore, the SEC has gone to great pains in its contact with brokers to show a co-operative spirit and to remove any suspicion that it was going to "crack down."

The latest is that pressure is being brought to bear on the reserve board to modify margin requirements and simplify the rules.

Selling in the rails is probably nothing more than a little house cleaning.

Prices of some of the "weak sisters" have been too respectable in reaction to their financial conditions and prospects. They are being whittled down.

It is noticeable that the good ones like Atchison are finding buyers and hold well.

A better situation in its territory next year would find Atchison making real money again; and the road is in a position to pay good dividends as soon as this happens.

BOSTON STOCKS ARE MIXED

Eastern Gas & Fuel preferred added a point to its gain, the prior preferred lost a point. General Capital was down about 1 and Hathaway preferred was nearly 2 lower.

Loews, Swift & Co. and United Fruit were the only changes.

Small gains were registered in American Telephone Gillette and Kendall.

Grains Higher in Chicago Trading

Chicago, Nov. 2 (INS)—Grain futures were generally higher today on the strength in Winnipeg and firmer Liverpool cables.

Wheat was bid off to be up, corn 1/4 to 3/8c higher, and oats unchanged to 1/8c advanced.

Wheat new December 97¾-88, May 96-96¾, July 88¾-89¼.

Oats, new, December 30¼, May 49¾-½.

Cotton Higher in New York Trading

New York, Nov. 2 (INS)—Cotton futures staged a vigorous advance today under the favorable influence of sharply higher Liverpool cables, and the last registered gains were around 50 cents a bale. The better tone in stocks was an added stimulant to the improved trading.

Around the noon hour futures were up 8 to 14 points, with December up 10 at 12.10, March up 8 at 12.7; May up 10 at 12.18, and October up 14 at 11.91.

16,028 Decrease in Carloadings

Washington, Nov. 2 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads announced today that loadings of revenue freight for the week ended October 27 totaled 624,232 cars, a decrease of 16,028 below the preceding week and 18,171 below 1933. But an increase of 6068 above the corresponding week in 1932.

Share Prices Work Higher on Curb

By International News Service

New York, Nov. 2—The curb market showed a disposition to work higher in early dealings today, although irregularity continued evident in various sections of the list.

Parker Rustproof featured the specialties with a 2 point run-up to 51¾ on the declaration of a $1 extra dividend. Aluminum rose a point to 51; and fractional gains were the rule in Technicolor, American Cynamid B, Pittsburg Plate Glass, and Swift and Company.

Distillers Seagrams rose ¼ to 13¾ in the active group.

Oils were mixed with minimal gains in Standard of Nebraska and International Petroleum offset by slight declines in Creole and Humble.

In order to facilitate the computation of margins under the regulations of the Security Exchange Act, the Boston Evening American now carries the low since July 1, 1933, instead of the low for the year. The Securities Exchange Act provides that until July 1, 1933, the lowest price at which a security has sold since July, 1933, shall be considered as the lowest market price in the preceding 36 months. After July 1, 1936, the Act provides that the lowest price in the preceding 36 months will form the basis for margin computation.

Prices advanced 1 to 2 points on rather brisk trading during the forenoon, but later tapered slightly on dwindling volume.

SPECIALTIES GAIN

Many other specialties showed substantial gains. Johns-Manville, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Santa Fe and United Carbon were higher.

The flurry in McCrory stocks apparently reflected reports that reorganization plans for this chain were maturing. The company has been in receivership since early last year.

IGNORE LOADINGS

The carrier shares seemingly paid little attention to a contra-seasonal decrease in freight car loadings for the week ended October 27, of 16,028 cars. The total of 824,252 cars was 18,171 under the total for the corresponding 1933 week, but 6968 above the same week in 1932.

While motor stocks failed to respond in the previously mentioned fashion to Ford prospects, fundamentals, overnight consideration of the Detroit manufacturers' prognostications and the pioneer attracted renewed attention to the automotive group.

The strength displayed by world wheat markets was attributed partly to the possibilities of a clash between the French and Germans in the Saar. France has recently been a heavy wheat exporter, and, should trouble result between the Republic and the Reich, it was argued that this grain supply would dry up immediately.

The recovery in crude rubber prices was coincident with reports from abroad that a new conference of producers would be convened shortly, and that an agreement was highly probable for substantial restrictions.

Industry-minded stock traders continued to maintain their view that drastic currency expansion and further dollar revaluation will not be avoided in the long run. They pointed to the announcement from Washington that the government public debt has shown an increase of $3,235,308,289 during the past year, that President Roosevelt indicated the unbalanced budget will be stretched to restore pay cuts in government salaries and that governmental spending shows no signs of abatement.

COOK-COOS by Ted Cook

"Everyone," says Judge Brandeis, "should plan his life fifty years in advance."

A lot of bankers did that—they planned their lives fifty years in advance. In advance of an indictment.

It's easy enough to try to plan in advance—but it will take a very agile person to plan in advance of taxes.

* * *

"As I see it," says Genevieve the kitchen cynic, "the big problem is how to safeguard both individual initiative and the people who're apt to meet up with it."

Q. and A. DEPARTMENT

Q.—Don't you think that a girl who is athletic, and at the same time likes to talk about world affairs, can marry any man she pleases?

Club Woman.

Ans.—Mebbe—but them kind don't please very many men.

Aunt ("Hothouse Flower") Bella.

Little dears that guzzle beers
At all times of the day,
Will soon have legs like lager kegs
If they keep on that way.

American Tragedy
No. 32345

One of the tragedies of these times is the way educational institutions are forced to skimp along on restricted budgets. The nation's heart goes out to President J. Pluvious Doakes, of Bilgewater College, who declares that his institution is so poor that members of the football squad have to go without 8 o'clock classes, and there is no money to provide brooms for athletes who are on salary as janitors. And when the team goes into a huddle all the players have to light their cigarettes on one match.

Adam Scoffiac's Djournal

Up and to mirror, where dressed, and try my hat first at this angle and then at that, and so to breakfast, where my flummet bash me for a slobgullion, crying, "Shame! Shame!" because I seek to guttle with my hat on, and when I poke pointing fingers in ears, and close my eyes, and whistle mightily, she snatch my sausages, shewing how, by hook or snivy, some people will seek for to finde that which they durst not snatch openly.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1934

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION BY MORE THAN 80,000

56 Hours, 55 Minutes

That Ought to Be Slow Time from Coast to Coast

CAB OF THE "M-10001" RECORD HOLDER FOR THE TRANSCONTINENTAL RUN

THOUSANDS of people in Providence and Boston this week have viewed the Union Pacific's great streamline special M-10001.

The train's 900-horsepower Diesel engine COULD have brought it across the Continent sooner.

Even so, compared with previous achievements, this is fast time.

Yet compared with what will be done in future, when railways wake up to their potentialities, this will be ridiculously slow time.

It is impossible to exaggerate their value. IF USED.

Up to now they have not been used, and railway executives have shed briny tears because the buses and trucks, with no rights of way except the public highways, have cut into their business and forced most of them deep into the red.

The Union Pacific is to be congratulated for breaking away from obsolete ideas and experimenting with new ones.

It is one company, at least, which has learned that the moment you stop moving ahead, you slip back.

Chicago's Big Show

Chicago's great Exposition, a Century of Progress, blazed its way into history with a set of fabulous records.

Projected in the prosperous months of 1929, it ran its successful course during some of the worst days of the depression.

In contrast to the financial failures of most world's fairs, it paid its own way and will probably reimburse its backers in full.

Its total attendance—more than 38,000,000 paid admittances—exceeded the "gates" of both the Paris Exposition in 1931 and the biggest British Exposition, at Wembly, in 1924.

Most striking fact of all, a Century of Progress Exposition was organized for one year and continued for two.

President Roosevelt called it "a genuine contribution to American prosperity."

It has also been a remarkable demonstration of the characteristics and spirit of Chicago.

Factor for License

One of the outstanding factors making for favorable action on liquor license votes in towns and cities which might otherwise go "dry" is the matter of revenue.

The taxes derived from sales of alcoholic liquors help to reduce levies on home-owners and others. This argument is being widely used by William J. Flynn in Cambridge.

Mr. Flynn declares that, if the University City goes "dry," it will mean reduction of city employes' wages.

He says "No License" would close over 200 stores in Cambridge, and throw over 1200 out of work, swelling the unemployment lists. He also contends the liquor stores bring business to neighboring places.

Perhaps you can answer these arguments. But they will bring out many "License" votes. And what applies to Cambridge fits into the picture in other places too.

Hickory Stick Gone

Remember the song

"School days, school days, dear old Golden Rule days;
'Readin', and 'ritin' and 'rithmetic.
Taught to the tune of the hickory stick"?

Top honors were carried off by the marionettes made by the economic education class of the Lawrence School in Brookline.

NOTHING IS ACCIDENTAL

Something's happened. There's a moss—and they're blaming you.

"But that isn't fair," you cry. "It wasn't my fault. Yes, perhaps I was a little careless. But it isn't fair to talk as if I wanted things to turn out this way. Why couldn't possibly have planned such a thing—I'm not that sort of a person. Everyone knows I never meant to do it—yet they blame me."

Elsie Robinson

"I NEVER MEANT TO DO IT." Constantly you make that excuse. So do I. So does everyone. And we make it sincerely. We think it a good excuse and honestly believe it should relieve us of responsibility or punishment. But that's cockeyed reasoning.

We are responsible, 100 per cent, for our mishaps, even though we do not desire or plan them or expect them to occur—for we cause them to occur by our deliberate acts, our decisions or evasions.

NOTHING ACCIDENTAL

Nothing is accidental. Nothing "just happens." There's a reason for everything and a result from everything. Every happening has roots which go back to the beginning of your life—and which will bear harvest until the end of your life.

You are making history every second. Even when you're "just drifting" you're making history. The things you don't do are as powerful in shaping destiny as the things you do do.

A second of inaction packs as much wallop as a second of action. The thing you don't say weighs as heavily for good or evil as the thing you do say. A thought is as far reaching in its influence as a deed.

You cry—"I never dreamed it would happen!" But you could have, should have, dreamed it would happen. Consequences are as inevitable as sums in arithmetic.

WHO'S RESPONSIBLE?

Laziness plus indifference, illness plus selfishness, smugness plus sentimentality add up to certain definite results as surely as five plus three equals eight. And the fellow who makes that result possible is responsible.

If you fall asleep with a lighted cigarette sagging from your lips the bed will catch fire and the room will burn down. You don't think of yourself as a criminal.

You think of yourself as a careless but blameless person who has made an unfortunate blunder. YET YOU ARE AS TRULY INCENDIARY AS THOUGH YOU DELIBERATELY POURED KEROSENE AND APPLIED A MATCH.

Children and idiots may duck responsibility by saying, "I didn't mean to do it," but that alibi won't work with intelligent adults.

Big, Bad Wolves!

By Winifred Black

The timber wolves are coming back to the Empire State of New York. Coming back in droves, mind you.

Winifred Black

They are killing the cattle and the sheep, and jumping at the throats of the farm hands—right in the state of New York. Think of that! The state conservation commissioner has written a report about it, if you please.

Rather an interesting thing, that report, and thrillingly interesting is the comment made upon a number of such reports from all over the United States.

John A. Piquet, chief investigator for the National Survey Industrial Development, has made up his mind to tell those of us who don't know a thing, outside our own particular towns, something about it.

Weasels, foxes, raccoons, porcupines and horned owls—they're coming back in flocks all through the Adirondacks and the Catskill mountains.

The great whooping crane has been extinct, or practically so, for over fifty years—but the Platte river in Nebraska is alive with whooping cranes today!

Now's the time for the prophet and the seer to rise and tell us that civilization is doomed.

Well, maybe it is; but there's nothing mysterious about it.

The answer is simple, very simple, indeed. We've run away from the villages. We've deserted the farms. We've turned our back on the lumber camps and the great fishing grounds, we Americans.

Why stay and sow and reap and plow and work like slaves, when we could just lock the door of the old farm house, throw the key into the well and go to the city and live like kings, with a radio in the front room and icebox—frigerator in the kitchen and kind of a wheezy old car tied to the front door knob—and all the moving pictures in the world right around the corner, with a dozen ready-to-eat food shops within a stone's throw?

THE GAY LIFE

No more milking and churning. No more skimming cream. No more bothering with the wooly little big-eyed calves. No more listening to the maddening whoops of the old Cochin China rooster. A gay life, a free life, a smart life in town—that was the ticket!

And all the boys looking for a white-collared job, and all the girls dreaming of the little stenographer who married the boss—and gave parties to millionaires on board her own beautiful yacht, the Sea Queen!

Well, we seem to be paying for the yachts and the motor cars, just now, don't we? Somebody's paying for them, sure enough.

I wonder if some of our children won't have sense enough to see what queer, benighted, crackbrain creatures we've all been, trying to make amusement and recreation the chief end of life, even if we had to starve and freeze to do it.

Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

"Loyalty" is a grand old word, which appears to be coming back into vogue along with the other quaint fashions of the Gay Nineties.

A sense of loyalty, like a sense of humor or blue eyes or a singing voice, is something with which you are born. You HAVE it — or you haven't it. It is a primitive instinct, like Mother-love, and not all the New Morality can change it.

Helen Rowland

There are very fine points of loyalty, which some modern lovers and husbands and wives do not seem to understand.

I sometimes wonder if these young women with extremely broad ideas of love, who give their kisses so lightly and carelessly, realize that they are guilty of disloyalty to the man they intend some day to marry. (For every normal girl INTENDS to marry, SOME day!)

HER BAD ERROR

I wonder if she realizes that with every casual kissing-acquaintance, she is giving some man the "horse-laugh" on the man who will some day be her life-mate—and possibly her mealticket.

And those married men who indulge in little summer flirtations and cheap love-affairs on the side—I wonder if they ever stop to think that they are making a laughing-stock of the wife whom they promised to "honor and cherish."

Also, those chatty little wives who discuss their husbands' foibles and weaknesses with other women and spill all their domestic troubles on some other woman's shoulder. I wonder what is their notion of "loyalty."

It is not so much a husband's deflection or a wife's folly that hurts. It is the bitter knowledge that you have been laid open to scorn or ridicule, that you have been made to look foolish by the one person in the world who should guard and protect your pride.

UNWRITTEN LAW

The old "Unwritten Law" (now defunct) was based on the popular belief that a man whose wife had betrayed him had been publicly exposed to scorn and ridicule. In other words that he had been made a fool of. A woman was not supposed to be much injured by being made a fool of. Women were supposed to be fools, in those days—or at least morons.

But now that women have reputations of their OWN—reputations for brains, reputations for achievement, professional reputations and business reputations, a woman who is made to "look foolish" can be injured quite as much as a man.

There are many kinds of loyalty of course—loyalty to your ideals, to your work, to your job, to your country, to your friends. But loyalty to the person you married, and who is therefore at your mercy, leads them all.

There is probably no form of suffering quite so intense as the knowledge that somebody has the LAUGH on you, or that you have been made to look ridiculous by the one person who should uphold your dignity.

I think it might be a good idea to insert in the marriage service along with the promise to "love, honor and cherish," another vow "never to make him (or her) look foolish."

Stars and Stripes

There are enough candidates for Congress to sink the ship of state without going through the formality of scuttling it.

"Cruelty" has been defined at Reno. It means "hard on the eyes."

If Uncle Sam had that ten billion Europe owes him now, he could lend it at home, where a loan's a loan, not a laugh.

The King of Siam has learned that being "brother of the moon" doesn't help on a dark and stormy night.

New York state judge fined a milkmaid for frolicking all night and not milking the cows. The legal principle involved seems to be that, after a milkmaid has milked the cows she may frolic till the cows come home again.

Reverting to the fogs encountered by the London-Melbourne flyers, what is pea soup to some is duck soup to others.

Human Side of the News; On 'Mass Suicides'

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Among Asiatics there have been many instances of mass suicide, tragically in the news with the recent Hungarian suicide strike, but rarely has it occurred among Europeans.

Libraries have been written on individual suicide, but so far as this writer can learn, virtually nothing on those strange dark forces which impel groups of people to take their lives.

The reason would have been clear had the miners carried through to the end; but less understandable have been historic incidents which have been a fanatic challenge flung in the face of life, or deep and strange motivations which no man can fathom—religion or the want of it, some far hysterical reach of asceticism.

TOUCH HIGH LEVELS

The savants know little about it. Devious and darkly interwoven through the life force are the strands of human behavior. But there are simpler instances which touch the high levels of Greek tragedy—one of them in our own day.

It was in 1908 that the Dutch warships arrived at the Island of Bali to take formal and official possession of the island, "the Paradise of the Pacific." The Dutch had first arrived in 1855. The natives had resisted and gradually had been overwhelmed. They had learned the futility of opposing their Javanese lances against the weapons of the Europeans.

Stubbornly they clung to their ancient culture, their ceremonials, their customs, and, above all, to their religion. There was no intermingling of races.

But they knew they were doomed, and that some day the occupation would be sealed by international authority and their sovereignty over their flower-decked island would end forever.

TRAGEDY OF "PARADISE"

Two reigning princes, the Rajahs of Koengkoeng and Baboeng had been told that with the coming of the warships, the Dutch would finally and forever establish their rule. Suddenly the great ships loomed across the white strip of beach at Boeling. The princes and their households were prepared.

Down through the flowering acacia and banyan trees went a stately procession, men, women and children, perfumed and anointed and wearing white robes of beautiful fabrics. They were the rajahs, their relatives and retainers—all the ruling clan.

They moved slowly to the beat of a drum. Emerging from the green, flower-hung maze which has given Bali the name of "the island paradise," they raised their lances and the sunlight glinted on their metal tips. In the view of the watching sailors on the ships.

Down to the water's edge they moved, and then each plunged his lance into his breast. The sailors saw only a huddle of still, white figures. There was still the golden wash of sunlight on the beach and the song of the birds in the forest.

It was the surrender of a proud ancient way to a newer way, of old complaisance and old beliefs to the thrust of steel which revolves the world today. Life went on. The world heard little of the blood-stained white sands of Boeling.

SOUGHT BY CAMERAS

Two years ago, the moving picture men were swarming over the island, trying to get those elusive, old world ceremonials and dances into the stereotype of a western film. Only outer or visible aspect did they seize. Covarrubias, the distinguished New York artist, was there that year.

"Here is one of the most beautiful and authentic cultures surviving anywhere in the world," he said. "It is utterly incorruptible."

From their remote Hindu, Javanese and Polynesian beginnings, the islanders, lithe, tall and beautiful people, had nurtured religion, art, ceremonials, handicrafts, ethics and codes of behavior which their rulers placed above all else in life—and life without this heritage, was to be abandoned quietly and with dignity.

Perhaps nowhere in history has there been drawn so tragically and so sharply the metes and bounds of the spirit and the flesh.

In 1802, on the Island of Saga, at the mouth of the Ganges, the English were compelled to resort to drastic military action, to check mass suicide—ceremonious self-destruction with groups of natives leaping into the river. From a great precipice, south of the Narmada, bands of men and women hurled themselves each year.

IN FAR JAPAN

The Japanese always have been prone to suicide and, frequently, mass suicide. In 1703, the daimyo, Asano, as the result of his attack on the nobleman, Kira, killed himself in the Shogun's house.

His followers, the 47 Ronin, killed Kira, and then, with a carefully planned ceremony, committed suicide in a group, dying together in the same instant. They were buried with ceremony and, in the Bhuddist temple which stands on the site, wayfarers still venerate their memory today.

Egypt has ancient records of mass suicide. Islam has strongly opposed it in any form, but it has occurred from time to time. Jarvis Browne, in his book "Stranger than Fiction," a history of Judea, tells of the suicide of an entire ghetto in medieval Europe. The dark Russia of Dostoievsky is shot through with such tales.

Oddly enough, Dr. Harold H. Bender, the great orientalist of Princeton, has unearthed a deep Asiatic strata in the race life of the Hungarian people. Root words for simple tools are the same in the Chinese as in the Hungarian language.

One ponders these things in the light of this self-defacement of the Hungarian miners. Little we know of what lies deep down in the dark crypt of our race experience.

Veal for Gloucester

Its fishermen bring in every year a total catch of at least 50,000,000 pounds of cod, mackerel and other finny edibles.

Only recently the Mayor of Gloucester made a couple of trips to Washington to see if something could be done about selling surplus fish for relief provender.

Imagine His Honor's embarrassment when someone in the relief administration notified him a fine large consignment of smoked fresh-water fish was to be shipped from Wisconsin for needy Gloucesterites.

Rhode Island Songbird

The Woonsocket girl who once sold candy to patrons of the Metropolitan Opera is to have her chance at last with the Civic Opera Company of Chicago.

What an occasion it will be when she faces across the footlights the glittering audience to which she once so humbly offered her wares.

She, Anna Turkel, will be singing the lead in the great Opera "Aida." For her will be the salvos of thunderous applause she once heard roll out for the divas who held the spotlight in theaters where she so humbly vended her candy.

Dreams do come true!

For Better Canal

The Cape Cod Canal, whose traffic is exceeded only by that through the famous Suez waterway, is to be made wider and deeper. The War Department this week awarded a $498,976 contract for the needed work.

Visitors to the great Massachusetts ships' highway note with pleasure the progress on the great bridges being thrown across it. They will do away with drawbridge tieups when completed.

A better canal will mean more ships passing through. More ships mean more business. And more business will indeed be GOOD news.

Lucky Coins for Ships

Lieut.-Com. Leland P. Lovette informs us that when the New Orleans was being built in the New York Navy Yard its officers placed "lucky" coins, all of them heads up, beneath the heels of the fore and mainmasts of the cruiser.

Great numbers of Americans, in the Navy and in civilian life, are prepared to furnish coins for the same purpose if Congress will pay for the fore and mainmasts of more American warships, now sadly too few!
